WEEKSMEN PREPARED TO SWING TO M'CALL

HEARST ASKS SENATE TO GET WHOLE TRUTH FROM ARCHBOLD'S MEN

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The following letter to the chairman of the United States Senate Investigating Committee explains itself:

January 5, 1913.

My Dear Senator Clapp—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 3d instant.

In response to your request for a formal statement to the effect that I have furnished the committee with all letters and copies of all letters in my possession which are covered by the terms of the resolution, copy of which you enclose, I state that I have furnished the committee all such letters and copies of letters. This includes, irrespective of subject matter, all letters and copies of letters between John D. Archbold, George W. Perkins and Colonel Theodore Roosevelt and Representatives in Congress and members of Senate from the year 1900 to the date of the investigation and all relating directly or indirectly to any statements or questions of fact referred to in the statement of personal privilege made by the Senator from Pennsylvania, Mr. Penrose, on the floor of the Senate August 21, 1912.

THE $50,000 LOAN TO FORAKER.

With respect to the other inquiry in your letter asking for a letter concerning Mr. Foraker's return of the $50,000 which he borrowed from Mr. Archbold, I state positively that I have not any such letter and upon the most careful consideration and reflection and investigation am convinced that I never did have or see any such letter, if such a letter ever existed.

The circumstances in connection with the letters relating to the various amounts given Mr. Foraker and the $50,000 loan to Mr. Foraker by Mr. Archbold are as follows:

When I was speaking throughout the country in 1908 and revealing in one letter after another the various amounts received by Mr. Foraker from the Standard Oil Company, I mentioned as one item among other amounts this particular sum of $50,000.

I believe Mr. Foraker then said that this one payment of $50,000 was not a fee but a loan and that he had paid it back.

I think that I then replied in my desire to be absolutely fair to Mr. Foraker that I thought that on this unique occasion Mr. Foraker had told the truth, as I had a letter in my possession which indicated that this $50,000 was a loan.

This letter that I had in my possession was the letter of January 22, 1902 (your exhibit No. h-3), which specifically describes the transaction as a loan.

WAS WILLING TO TAKE FORAKER'S WORD.

It is possible that in the excess of my desire to be fair to Mr. Foraker I was willing to accept his unsupported statement that he had put that $50,000 back, but the copy of the letter that I had in my possession, as you can see by referring to it, spoke of this $50,000 as a loan without making any mention of its having been paid back.

I am informed by the police of Chicago that Mr. Foraker and the Standard Oil Company have recently bought back from their negro friends and associates all of the letters which they had not previously bought back, and that these letters were last week delivered by the negro, Gilchrist Stewart, to Paul D. Cravath of this city.

I should think, therefore, Mr. Foraker would have in his possession or available in the possession of the Standard Oil connections the letter you require if there is any such letter in existence.

I venture to suggest that you might properly ask Mr. Foraker and Mr. Archbold and the negro lawyer, Gilchrist Stewart, and the white lawyer, Paul D. Cravath, to appear before

By Appointment, President Kisses Wyoming Lassie

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—True to his promise and to an appointment made several weeks ago, the President of the United States kissed a young lady—the first time in the memory of present White House employes that a chief executive has made a definite appointment for a function of this nature.

Miss Phyllis Wisteraud, daughter of Mrs. Lillian H. Wisteraud of Landers, Wyo., was the favored young lady. She is four years old, and while on a tour through the White House some weeks ago expressed a desire to kiss the "nice, big, fat man."

This request was tucked up by so many fears that her mother wrote to the President, asking if the little girl couldn't kiss him before returning to her home—two thousand miles away. President Taft agreed and the ceremony took place today, much to Miss Phyllis' delight.

2 Hurt in Fall With Staging Four Stories Down Elevator Well

Walls at work today on a narrow staging over an elevator well in the uncompleted Cross Roads Associates garage building, at the junction of Commonwealth avenue and Boylston street, Herbert Starr and Walter Teabo, electricians, fell four stories and were seriously injured. Both men were taken to the City Hospital.

Starr's back was badly injured and he was badly bruised. Teabo suffered a broken hip and was badly cut about the hands and arms. Both were conscious when picked up.

Teabo had gone out on the staging to give instructions to Starr when the staging gave way. The staging had been built by driving nails into the cement walls of the elevator well, according to statements of workmen. The men fell fifty-eight feet, landing on a pile of rubbish.

Dr. F. A. Lewis, who attended the men, thinks from the cuts on their hands and arms that they intuitively spread their arms between them as they fell, the elevator well and this acted in the nature of a brake.

BET ON NAMESAKE TO BEAT MAYOR HURLEY, FELTON KILLS SELF

Thomas Felton of Peabody paid the penalty of death today for betting on his namesake, William S. Felton, who was defeated by John F. Hurley in the race for the office of Mayor of Salem.

While it is not known how much money Felton bet that the Salem Felton would win, it is known that when he learned that his namesake had lost, he became despondent. On Thursday he ate rat poison and roach paste.

He told Doctor Shannahan and the physicians at Thomas Hospital, where he was taken, that he wanted to die. After the doctors had fought against the effects of the poison two days, Felton died today.

He was a leather worker, was forty years of age and boarded at No. 21 Caller street.

WM. ROCKEFELLER WAITS FOR STEAMER AGROUND 12 HOURS

NASSAU, Bahamas, Jan. 11.—The departure of William Rockefeller for Miami, Fla., where he will again come under the jurisdiction of the Pujo congressional committee investigating the "money trust," has been delayed until 7 o'clock this evening. The steamer Miami, on which Mr. Rockefeller will sail, went ashore on Florida reef, where she remained grounded for twelve hours, and this delayed her arrival. If the Miami sails at 7 she should reach Florida along soon tomorrow.

HARRY F. ADAMS, ATHLETE, IS DEAD

WORCESTER, Jan. 11.—Harry F. Adams, for a number of years one of the most prominent athletes in the State, died today at his home here. He was in the brokerage business. At many of the indoor meets of the B. A. A. Adams was a conspicuous figure.

EXPLOSION UPON LINER KILLS TWO

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Jan. 11.—Two men were killed and a number of others injured today in an explosion on board the royal mail liner Aragon.

BROKER HELD FOR STEALING

Charged with the larceny of $58,000 from three women and one man through alleged fraudulent mining stock deals, John Sennett, with an office at No. 79 Milk street, was arrested today on a secret grand jury indictment, at his home, No. 36 Dearborn street, Roxbury, by Police Inspector Farrell.

The complainants against Sennett are Mrs. Lillian F. Turner of No. 181 Glenwood street, Malden; Mrs. Clara A. Brown of No. 15 Shaw street, West Newton; Mrs. Martin C. Moore of No. 54 Coolidge street, Brookline, and Josiah H. Brown.

The indictment, charging twenty counts of larceny, was returned today. Sennett was arrested immediately and taken to police headquarters, where he was booked. He was then led to the District Attorney's office and his bail was fixed at $20,000 by Assistant District Attorney Lavelle.

Sennett was arrested three weeks ago on complaint of two of the women and was held in the lower court in $20,000 bail.

It was through their devotion to a religious cult known as "The School of Divine Science" that the women met Sennett. The influence said to have been exercised over the late Mrs. Ole Bull by the Hindu Swami was akin to the "occult power" said to have been used in getting Sennett's patrons to invest with him.

Sennett insists the mine he sold stock in is a good proposition. He claims the action of the complainants is unjust. The stock disposed of is in the Hancock Mining Company, said to be in Idaho.

BOYS PROVE ALIBI IN SNOWBALL CASE

Five of the Charlestown boys who marched to city hall to make a demand of Mayor Fitzgerald to be allowed to coast on Chestnut street, Charlestown, were arraigned in the Charlestown district court on charges of throwing snowballs at pedestrians in Charlestown some time ago. They were summoned into court by Patrolman Michael J. Feeley of Charlestown, who had forbidden them to coast on Chestnut street. The boys proved an alibi on the snowballing charges and were discharged. They were Thomas Conroy, Harold Hein, Thomas McGuillan, and John F. Morse, each thirteen years old, and John Pierce, twelve, all of Charlestown.

KAISER ACTS AS FIREMEN'S CHIEF IN PALACE BLAZE

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—Emperor William acted as a fire chief during a blaze in the Potsdam Palace today, when he took charge of the situation and directed the operations of the firemen.

Under direction of the Emperor the fire was soon under control. Then the Kaiser ordered up wines from the imperial cellars. This he distributed among the firemen.

LINER KURFUERST DISABLED OFF COAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—A wireless message was received by the North German Lloyd line today stating that the steamer Grosser Kurfuerst, bound from Bremen to New York with 1,000 passengers on board, had broken her fore crank shaft off Cape Race, N. F., last night, and is making toward port at half-speed. She will not arrive here until January 12, three days late. As a result of the accident the North German Lloyd line today called off the Panama and West Indies cruise of the Grosser Kurfuerst, scheduled to start here January 16.

500 WEST WARREN MILL PEOPLE FACE STRIKE EVICTION

WEST WARREN, Jan. 11.—Five hundred mill operatives face eviction as a result of joining the strike at the Thorndike cotton mills. They have until Friday to find new houses and move from the mill tenements.

The mill management has served notice on them that they must move from the property owned by the mill. Nearly all of the operatives live in the mill tenements.

The strike has been on for several months and the operatives have continued to occupy the mill tenements—up to Fri-

KID CARTER IS INDICTED AS SLAYER

James B. Jennings, alias "Kid Carter," was indicted for murder in the first degree of William H. MacPherson, by the Suffolk second July today, and George H. Rounds, former cashier at the Parker House, was indicted for larceny of $27,805 from the J. Reed Whipple Co., and for forgery and uttering in four counts each.

This was the new Grand Jury's first report after a week's deliberation on cases presented by the District Attorney's office.

"Kid Carter," now held in Charles Street Jail without bail, will be brought before Judge Brown the first of next week to plead to the MacPherson murder indictment.

MacPherson was shot and killed in a South End saloon on New Year's Day, the same day on which the body of Mrs. Mildred Donovan of Revere, an intimate friend of "Kid Carter," was found near a Malden cemetery.

The authorities of Malden and of Middlesex County are working on the mystery surrounding the death of Mildred Donovan, who had been in Kid Carter's company the evening before.

Although a finding of death by asphyxia has been made in her case, the police seek to know who, if anyone, was with her when she died, and whether or not she died at some other place than where her body was found. There are many points about the case to be cleared up.

If the inquest into the death of Mildred Donovan supports the theory of murder, the Malden police are confident they have evidence enough to connect "Kid Carter" with the murder. Inspector George E. Greenleaf said:

If the inquest to be held Thursday shows that the death was due to murder, we have sufficient evidence to make it pretty warm for "Kid Carter."

The report of Professor Whitney of Harvard on the death is now in the hands of District Attorney John J. Higgins.

The police believe that death may have been caused in several ways.

It might have been caused by someone putting a bandage over the woman's nose, causing suffocation.

It might have been caused by striking the woman a blow on the nose and then laying her down in such a manner that the blood was run back and caused strangulation.

Or it might have been caused by pressure on the windpipe. According to medical authorities a person can be strangled by pressure on a certain part of the windpipe, without leaving outward marks.

The new Grand Jury had a busy week, as shown by its reporting to Judge Brown today forty-seven indictments and twenty "no" bills.

Among the latter was a "no" bill in the case of James E. Bradshaw, who had been accused of setting a fire at the Hotel Rossmore.

OTTO SVERDRUP AND 16 LOST IN NORTH

CHRISTIANA, Jan. 11.—The return from Greenland of mail marked "uncalled for" lends to the belief that the famous Arctic explorer, Otto Sverdrup and sixteen persons who accompanied him on a wintering boat in Greenland waters have been lost.

UTAH IS FOR HADLEY FOR VICE-PRESIDENT

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 11.—For Vice-President of the United States, Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri. That is the decision reached by the Republican electors of Utah. Mrs. Margaret Jane Witcher was one of the Utah electors, and will be named to carry the result of the vote to Washington.

JUDGE DISMISSES CASTRO HABEAS WRIT

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Judge Holt in the Federal District Court today dismissed the habeas corpus writ obtained in behalf of General Cipriano Castro, deposed President of Venezuela, by George Gordon Battle. This leaves the case in the hands of the special board of inquiry which is considering the case.

HOW MRS. WILSON COOKS HER FOWL EN CASSEROLE WITH HAM

Fowl en casserole with ham is noted far and wide as one of the most delightful of southern dishes. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson is known as a famous cook and creator of tasteful dishes. Here is how the wife of the President-elect prepares the dish for her Georgia husband:

The fowl is cut up as for fricassee or for fried chicken. It is then placed in a casserole and covered with a quart of boiling water. It is then allowed to cook slowly for 45 minutes covered. Wash two cups of rice thoroughly, then drain and mix with salt, pepper and a quarter of a pound of ham that has been chopped fine; pour this mixture over the chicken in the casserole and again cover and cook for half an hour longer. It may be served in the casserole in which it is cooked.

Wilson Goes West Cheered by His Ever Lucky Number 13

ON BOARD WILSON SPECIAL CAR, Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 11.—President-elect Woodrow Wilson's lucky lookoo number "13" was again in evidence today as the presidential party sped westward from New York to Chicago where Mr. Wilson will make a speech tonight at the Commercial Club. There were just thirteen members in the presidential party including the newspaper correspondents and friends of the President-elect felt sure that the trip would pass off without untoward incident because of this fact.

"It is certainly curious how persistently the number thirteen follows me and always in a pleasant connection," declared Mr. Wilson, as he sat down to breakfast. "I left Princeton on Friday and will return on the 13th of the month. I surely cannot get away from that number."

Incidentally, on Monday, which is January 13, 1913, the Electoral College will meet in every State of the Union and elect Mr. Wilson President.

Governor Wilson noted that one member of his party was carrying a silk hat case, and began to twit the owner about his "frix."

Some one asked Mr. Wilson if he had any superstition in his hats, and for reply the President-elect repeated this limerick:

I'm like the indolent old Hindoo
Who does everything which he can do.
He sticks to his caste
From first until last,
And for clothing he makes his more skin do.

QUINCY MAY GET ANOTHER TRIAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The illness of Judge Charles M. Hough of the Federal District Court, who was stricken yesterday with hemorrhages of the stomach, may necessitate a new trial for Julian Hawthorne, Ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy of Boston, Albert Freeman and Dr. William J. Morton, who are charged with using the mails fraudulently in promoting mining companies.

GREENFIELD WOMAN IS KILLED BY FALL

MERIDEN, Ct., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Ellen Hill, eighty-seven years old, of Greenfield, Mass., was killed by falling down stairs at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John R. Thompson, whom she was visiting. Her neck was broken.

WILL TAKE LAST VOTE ON MONDAY

The senatorial deadlock is to be broken Monday.

If Congressman John W. Weeks, who had seventy-three votes when the Republican caucus adjourned yesterday, out of a necessary ninety-four, does not show increased strength on the first ballot Monday, then the Weeks leaders, so these leaders themselves declared today, will tell the Weeks supporters to vote for Congressman Samuel W. McCall of Winchester, the other principal candidate.

The Weeks leaders are determined that there shall be a Republican nomination Monday, in preparation for the beginning of legislative balloting Tuesday.

The McCall supporters are saying nothing, but are standing firm to the finish.

Weeks Men Confident.

Today's activities opened with the cheerful chatter among the Weeks headquarters in the Parker House that, just as sure as big oaks from little acorns grow, either John W. Weeks of Newton or Samuel W. McCall of Winchester to be nominated Senator Crane.

The candidate himself at the Weeks headquarters was asked about it. Mr. Weeks gave out the following statement.

There will be a choice Monday by the Republican majority in the Legislature of a candidate for United States Senator. That candidate will be supported on Tuesday by the entire Republican vote in both House and Senate. That candidate will be either Congressman McCall or myself.

Sure It's McCall or Weeks.

This declaration was practically confirmed this afternoon in the McCall head quarters at the Hotel Bellevue.

Representative Charles L. Gifford of has been with the Winchester Congressman throughout the balloting, said:

I believe there will be a nomination on Monday. I believe either Weeks or McCall will be the nominee. I expect the break to either one of these candidates will begin on the second ballot.

I am not ready to say who will be the nominee. The Weeks forces have the better generals. They have men more experienced in political trickery and strategem than the McCall people.

There is one thing regarding the tactics of the Weeks people which I have heard quite a good deal about and which, if true, is outrageous.

That is, that some of the Weeks managers in the Legislature, who wield a good deal of influence on legislative matters, are threatening members from the western part of the State who are supporting McCall. I heard they are threatening these western men that, if they do not go over to Weeks, they will not get the trolley extension they want.

YEGGMEN ESCAPE IN GUN BATTLE.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Interrupted in the act of blowing a safe in the offices of D. J. Frame & Bros., No. 63 Washington street, five yeggmen exchanged shots with a policeman and watchman early today and escaped. They got only $10.

DETECTIVE SHOT IN REVOLVER DUEL WITH BANDITS.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Detective Watson was shot in a revolver duel with two hold-up men, who attacked a bank messenger in the hallways of No. 413 East 56th street. One of bandits escaped, but the other was captured.

THOUSANDS MORE IN GARMENT STRIKE.
NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—With the rejection of the manufacturers' terms by nearly 2,000 white goods workers, both sides in the great garment workers' strike, involving nearly 150,000 men and women, settled down today to a siege battle. Several thousand more girl workers quit today.

"DUTCHMAN" SUES BISHOP FOR $100,000

TORONTO, Jan. 11.—Charging his bishop with calling him a "Dutchman," Father Gnam, parish priest of Wyoming, in Lambton County, has sued Bishop Fahey for slander, demanding $100,000 damages.

ETTOR REFUSES TO EXPLAIN HIS HOTEL 'THREAT'

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The thousands of hotel and restaurant patrons in Manhattan today tried to realize just what is threatened in the advice given by Joseph J. Ettor to the striking waiters and cooks to make it "unsafe" for the capitalis; to eat food prepared by the strikers.

This was the very first thing that Ettor said when he talked to the strikers. The I. W. W. leader, who was recently acquitted of charges growing out of the textile strike riots in Lawrence, Mass., and who since then has declared it was I. W. W. strength and not justice which freed him, talked to striking waiters and cooks after a series of disturbances in front of hotels and restaurants.

Doesn't Care About Cause.

Ettor even declared that he doesn't care what the strike is about. He "knows" the strikers are right about it.

The thing that Ettor said which causes the most uneasiness today was this:

If you are compelled to go back under unsatisfactory conditions, go back with a determination to stick together until you get what you want. Go back with your minds made up that it is the unsafest thing in the world for the capitalist to eat food prepared by members of your union.

Ettor caused surprise when he confessed:

> I don't know what you are striking about; in fact, I haven't had time to find out. What's more, I don't care. I only know that you are striking for what you believe is right, and I will help you, whether you're right or wrong.

Refuses to Explain.

Ettor later refused to explain definitely what he meant.

Earlier in his speech Ettor urged the strikers not to consider mediation.

"Hotels could not exist without you," he said. "Do not accept any arbitration board to decide your grievances. Close the doors of every hotel in the city, and keep them closed. Not the pantry doors, but the front doors."

Moquin's uptown restaurant in Eighth avenue was bombarded by bricks and was closed after the guests had been chased out and the forty waiters and cooks had joined the strikers.

In front of the Taverne Louis in the Flatiron building, 200 strikers tried to prevent guests from entering, and roughhoused a policeman when he tried to drive them away. Despite the two fights, there was little to the strike except talk. None of the big hotels was even inconvenienced by desertions.

RELIGIOUS WORKS BURN IN SUDBURY BUILDING BLAZE

A library of religious works went up in smoke at a brief but disastrous fire in the printing establishment of the Rev. Salem D. Towne, on the second story of the six-story Sudbury Building, 77-79 Sudbury street.

The smoke was noticed by the elevator boy and John A. Francis, the janitor. At first it looked as though the whole building might go, but the fire was confined to the print shop.

"Easter Hope" and "Researches in Palestine" are the titles of the books which were present in largest quantities, having been newly printed and awaiting delivery. A large number of wedding books and church calendars were also destroyed. Mr. Towne places his loss at $2,500.

HIGH TIME PEOPLE'S DESIRES BE SOUGHT, SAYS C. S. BAXTER

The best solution of the situation is to go into the Legislature and adopt the preferential primary bill. All sorts of influences have been working for the leading candidates. It is time for the Republican party to recognize that the people of Massachusetts wish to select their own United States Senator.—Charles S. Baxter, Guild supporter.

TURKEY TROT AT HUNNEWELL DEBUTANTE BALL

At Miss Mary Hunnewell's coming-out dance at the Copley-Plaza there was a waltz or two, then the orchestra swung into the opening bars of "That Mellow Melody."

And the "Turkey Trot"—or the modified version of that dance which society calls the "Turkey Trot"—was on.

At the Assembly ball a week ago the "T. T." was barred, absolutely barred, thanks to the stern decree and watchful eyes of S. Hooper-Hooper. The younger and livelier folk didn't think much of this order.

But this was not the rather staid assembly—it was a debutante dance and all the young bud's young friends, the Vincent Club girls and the college boys were on hand—there was an astonishing lot of young men there, too, as shown by the predominance of evening suits in the mise-en-scene. It looked as though Miss Mary Hunnewell is tremendously popular.

Glide and "Trot."

This being one of the vivacious gatherings, they simply would have the "Turkey Trot," and the orchestra leader produced it accordingly. That orchestra, by the way, could certainly play rag-time, with the sandpaper artist putting in a soft-shoe shuffle now and then and the whole swing and rythm of the music just naturally lifting the dancers off their feet.

Over the paraquet floor, under pink chandelier globes, the members of families who have made the Back Bay famous swung and glided and "trotted."

Did they like it?

When the orchestra stopped—doubtless for sheer lack of breath—there was a Gatling fire of applause, sharp and insistent.

Away went the orchestra again and the dancers with it. A second stop brought renewed applause.

A third time the orchestra played, then stopped, then started the fourth time, in answer to hand-clapping.

No firemen's ball had anything on this society coterie for enthusiasm. Finally they let the orchestra rest. But through the evening they danced the "Trot" every chance they had.

No "Collisions" in Society.

Some of the men who were not dancing every time would form a line a little ways out from the wall at one end of the hall, which left an alley-like space of vacant floor in their rear. Some of the couples, who wanted an uninterrupted floor space, spied this open territory, swung around the end of the line of non-dancers and "trotted" up and down the waxed lane without danger of collision.

Even on the central floor there were wonderfully few collisions considering the speed of some of the dances and that there were about 600 people on the floor. One doesn't collide in society. It isn't "done."

The ballroom was festooned and the loges were bordered with Southern smilax, laurel and loris. When dancing was on there was a wonderfully pretty scene of life and color. Pale reds and pinks predominated in the feminine toilettes.

KENTUCKY PEOPLE FLEE RIVER FLOOD

RAILROAD BOARD ASKS PARTITION OF NEW HAVEN

"What's the use?" said William B. Lawrence, one of the biggest Boston & Maine stockholders, when told today that the Massachusetts Railroad Commission recommends breaking up the New Haven road into its separate parts.

Mr. Lawrence's attitude is that there isn't any use in a recommendation which won't be followed or a law which won't be obeyed. He cited the New Haven trolley situation as illustration.

On the railroad recommendations of the State Commission Mr. Lawrence said:

> What's the use of saying that? When the Massachusetts Supreme Court ordered the New Haven to divest itself of its trolleys, what did it do? It passed them over to the hands of its friends to be run in its behalf. What's the use of making a law which, it seems, cannot be obeyed? There is always some means of getting rid of it.
>
> To enforce the law respecting corporations of this type is hard. I think that the Attorney-General is derelict in his duty.
>
> Now when we come to read this report of the Railroad Commission, are we going to see anything done to make the railroads obey the laws or is this same issue to be dodged and set at naught? This is the thing we must face, when is the law to be obeyed?
>
> If the Massachusetts Supreme Court orders one thing, why is it not followed? This is the question that is bothering us.
>
> How much effect will this report of the Railroad Commission have?
>
> To be judged by the past, the report may promise certain things, but we want to see them carried out.

"Big Tim" Sullivan Is Under Restraint; Bowery Misses Him

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, familiarly called "Big Tim," will never again be seen at his old haunts, nor personally greet his thousands of friends and followers.

"The big fellow" has been ill for many months and has reached a turning of the ways where it is necessary to keep him in restraint.

A petition made by his step-brother, Larry Mulligan, and his step-sister, will be followed at once by application for a commission to be named by the court to look after his vaudeville business interests, which are said to have suffered greatly since he became ill last Fall.

His malady which started with diabetes grew worse and he began having hallucinations. For weeks past his relatives have avoided the step which they were at last forced to take when they asked to have him restrained. And now the Bowery will see him no more, and is wondering what will become of the famous Sullivan dinners, when thousands of pairs of shoes were given to the needy.

MARLBORO OFFICIAL DIES IN AUTO CRASH

MARLBORO, Jan. 11.—Michael Connelly, aged fifty-seven, and for twenty-five years foreman of the city water and sewer department, was killed when the city auto in which he and George A. Stacey and Timothy J. Long skidded through a wire fence and plunged into an apple tree early today. Stacy, who is superintendent of the department, was badly bruised, while Long, another city employe sustained severe injuries about his legs and arms.

TODAY'S LATE CABLE NEWS

Produces Cancer in Bodies of Rats.

COPENHAGEN.—A new marvel of science was revealed today by the announcement of Professor Johannes Fibiger of the University of Copenhagen that he had been able to create cancer in a sound body by other than external irritation for the first time in medical history. Experiments are now geing made to try to find a serum which will prevent the formation of cancer cells. Dr. Fibiger experimented on cockroaches, in which he developed nematodes, or worm germs. Then he fed rats with infected cockroaches and soon afterwards cancer swellings with cancer toxin developed in the rats' stomachs.

39 Lepers Shot and Burned.

SHANGHAI—Thirty-nine lepers were put to death in atrocious manner by order of the provincial authorities at Nanning. The sufferers first were shot and then their bodies were burned in a huge trench.

Arrest Grave Robbers.

FLORENCE—The police of this place say they have arrested two notorious apaches from Marseilles who, they declare, were guilty of the outrages on the royal tomb of the Dowager Duchess of Genoa, the mother of the former Queen Margharita, at Superga, near Turin.

Vatican and Spain at Peace.

MADRID—An ambassador to the Vatican will be appointed in a short time. The relations between the Spanish government and the Holy See, it will be recalled, have been strained for two years.

Alps' Toll 95; 5 Women.

VIENNA—The Fremdenblatt states that the death toll in the Alps during 1912 was ninety-five. Of this number fifty-three fell from precipices, thirteen were killed by avalanches and eight were frozen to death. Five of the victims were women.

New Order Wins Patrons.

LONDON—The Savoy Theatre management reports that the suspension of the evening dress rule in deference to the protests of Americans and other tourists has resulted in an increased attendance. Other West End managers will soon follow the example of the Savoy.

HEROIC FIREMEN FIND GIRLS RESCUED AT RISK OF LIFE ARE ONLY WAX

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 11.—Firemen who heroically dashed into the burning Stamford Clothing Company's store to rescue several seemingly terrified young ladies, found they were wax models.

MEN HIGHER UP TO BE EXPOSED IN NASHUA PROBE

NASHUA, N. H., Jan. 11.—"The man higher up" in Nashua's municipal scandal and several of his lieutenants are to be exposed in a legislative inquiry soon to be started, it was declared today, following the wholesale graft exposures that came to light with the indictment by the Hillsborough County Grand Jury at Manchester of seventy-nine citizens, many of them prominent in Nashua and Manchester.

Police Commissioner Frank A. Wingate of Nashua heads the list of indictments on charges of liquor selling and bribery. A legislative probe is expected to reveal the work of several men who hold positions of trust and prominence in city and State government. Impeachment proceedings may be instituted.

Police Commissioner Gregg, the wealthy young reformer who was appointed by Governor Bass, said today:

> The work has just begun. We are going to clean up the entire bunch of grafting officials and habitual lawbreakers in this city.
>
> I was inclined to let up a little, but the criticisms by certain men of prominence have aroused my ire and there will be no letup. Our critics have intimated that because indictments were not found against certain high officials whom it was rumored would be presented by the Grand Jury we had made a failure.
>
> So far as I knew indictments were found against all the persons of whom we complained. The highest official who I sought to have indicted was my colleague on the commission.
>
> It is our intention to take our information against certain other high-ups to the Legislature or to the Supreme Court for impeachment. I am not alone in this matter and some of my influential friends are more zealous than I am in this cause.
>
> We have just begun this battle and when we are through Nashua will be the cleanest city in New England.

MORSE'S SPAN OF LIFE NEAR END, SAY DOCTORS

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 11.—Charles W. Morse, whom President Taft released from the Federal Prison here, January 19, 1911, after serving two years of a fifteen-year sentence, has little more than a week to live, according to the predictions of physicians, made at the time they examined him as he lay in the Fort McPherson Hospital awaiting the action of the government authorities. The physicians predicted then that Morse would not live a year.

Dr. A. L. Fowler of Atlanta, the constant attendant of Morse before the banker was freed, sees no reason to alter his prediction that the pardoned banker is a doomed man. He said:

> If I was in error when I said Morse could not live out the year when he lay next door to death in the Fort McPherson Hospital last January, it was merely an error of time. He is no nearer complete recovery today than he was then. He may go at any time. And then again he may live for months if treated with proper care. But to say that Morse will again be the Morse of old, conducting a strenuous business in Wall Street, is absurd. It is a physical impossibility.

HOUSE COMMITTEE RESUMES SHIPPING TRUST INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Having shown that the great majority of the freight that leaves New York for Africa, Asia or South America moves on steamship lines controlled by conferences, which make rates arbitrarily, with "all that the business will stand," the House Committee on Merchant Marine, which is investigating the Shipping Trust, today took up the transatlantic business between Europe and the United States.

DEADLOCK HOLDS UP ILLINOIS INAUGURAL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 11.—E. F. Dunne will not become Governor of Illinois Monday. The inauguration arranged for that day has been indefinitely postponed because of the deadlock in the lower House of the legislature which has made the election of a Speaker so far impossible. It is expected that the inaugural will occur January 20 unless the deadlock remains unbroken.

How to Stop a Cough

Something Every Mother Should Know

Every mother should watch over the health of her family as jealously as she guards the family morals. At the first symptom of a cough or cold, shake together in a large bottle a couple of ounces of glycerine, half an ounce of Virgin Oil of Pine and about half a pint of pure whiskey.

Give the patient a teaspoonful of this simple and harmless remedy every four hours. The first dose almost invariably brings instant relief, and the cold is generally expelled from the system inside of twenty-four hours. A supply of this medicine should always be kept in the medicine cabinet to prevent the development of serious infections of the throat and bronchials.

You probably have the glycerine and whiskey in the house already, and you can get the Virgin Oil of Pine at any drug store. To insure freshness and purity insist on having the half-ounce vials which come in sealed wooden cartons bearing the label of

CALL GARMENT WORKERS HERE TO BIG MEETING

With 120,000 men and women and children of kindred callings on strike in New York, the Boston Ladies' Garment Workers' District Council has flooded the local garment-making district with printed calls for a mass meeting at Faneuil Hall tomorrow evening for the discussion of local grievances.

That there is discussion of a general strike of the five Ladies' Garment Workers' Unions here was admitted by local labor leaders. If called it would affect twelve thousand operatives in that branch, they said, and might result in a sympathetic strike of the twenty thousand other garment workers who are employed on men's clothing.

The Ladies' Garment Workers' District Council, under whose auspices the Faneuil Hall meeting is to be held, includes in its list of affiliated unions the five locals of that calling organized in this city. Alex Finkelstine is president, A. Truckman secretary, William Richmond treasurer, and Benjamin Horne, business agent.

Victor Murdock Addresses Wife at Bath and a Park

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Victor Murdock, the red headed Kansas Congressman and editor, does not speak French. His wife and daughter are abroad. Recently, when near Paris, they wrote to the head of the family. In the letter they said their address would be found printed on the envelope.

Mr. Murdock took their word for it and addressed his reply as per instructions. He "followed copy" down to the period. In his wife's answer he got a translation of what he had written. This was it:

> Madam Victor Murdock,
> Hotel Grand Prix.
> Every room with bath. Situated in large park. Tennis courts alongside. Hot and cold water. Private dining rooms.
> Mourmelon, near Paris, France.

And the best part of this story is that it is true.

SOME DEMOCRATS OPPOSE SHARP CUT IN DUTIES ON METALS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—In an effort to give a hearing to all the manufacturers who desire to be heard on the metal schedule of the tariff law, the House Ways and Means Committee decided today to continue its sitting late into the night.

The metal schedule, it is declared, will cause much controversy when revision is attempted. Many Democratic members of the House who have metal industries in their districts are known to favor protective duties and will resist any attempt to reduce duties sharply.

Chairman Underwood's policy will be lower rates on the metal schedule in order to make it a good revenue producer, especially in cases where it effects trust-controlled articles in this country.

Reductions are almost certain to come on machine tools, files and manufactured goods, which, it has been shown compete successfully in foreign markets with foreign made goods.

NOBLEMAN HURT; 2 DIE IN AUTO CRASH

SAVANNAH, Ga., Jan. 11.—Two men were killed, another was fatally injured and two others, one of them a Russian nobleman, were badly hurt in an automobile accident here early today. The dead men are Harry Bornemann and Ernest Bornemann, both wealthy cotton exporters. The dying man is William Manigult, the chauffeur. Baron George Knoop and M. Jacub of Moscow, Russia, were badly injured.

BOSTON AMERICAN $40,000 CONTEST

GOOD FOR 5 VOTES

VALUELESS AFTER SATURDAY, JAN. 25.

Name________________

Street and No.________________

City or Town________________ Dist.________

Send votes in one bundle. Keep 5-vote coupons separate from 25-vote coupons. Write plainly or stamp on outside wrapper candidate's name, address and district number, and total number of votes said to be contained in package. Write or stamp only 3 or 4 coupons in each bundle. If possible, candidates should use rubber stamp with name, address and district number.

TOMORROW IS A RED LETTER DAY IN BIG CONTEST

BY THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Tomorrow is the day!

When the complete vote list in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest appears in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, every candidate will find cause for new enthusiasm and renewed energy.

Tomorrow's vote list will contain a record of each candidate who had to his or her credit more than 5,000 votes on last Tuesday, January 7.

The Contest Editor will make every effort to furnish candidates with a vote list each Sunday from now until the end of the contest. If space will permit, all candidates will then know just where they stand from week to week until the finish.

All Are Prize Winners.

The Contest Editor wishes particularly to call every candidate's attention to the fact that every name in tomorrow's vote list is now in the prize winning class. This means that if the contest were to end tomorrow every contestant's name which is printed in the vote list would receive a valuable prize for his or her effort.

If YOUR name is printed tomorrow just compare your present position with what it would be if you were to round up twenty-five or fifty more subscriptions. See what a difference in prizes this would make to you and then go out and get every subscription in sight and, if possible, do it before next Wednesday night at 10 p. m.

Remember the "New Year's Offer" ends on next Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, and at the stroke of ten some candidate will own a beautiful automobile as a result of his efforts and every contestant will have received the special bonus vote on subscriptions.

New Year's Offer.

Here is the "New Year's Offer":

First—A special vote bonus will be given for each subscription turned in during the two weeks beginning Wednesday, January 1, and ending Wednesday, January 15, at 10 p. m. as follows:

Sub term.	Regular value.	Bonus value.	Total.
6 months	1500 votes	750	2250
12 months	3500 votes	1750	5250
36 months	7500 votes	3750	11250

Second—A four-cylinder "Little" runabout automobile will be given to the candidate who polls the highest vote BY SUBSCRIPTION between Wednesday, January 1, and Wednesday, January 15, at 10 p. m.

Candidates are invited to call at Contest Headquarters at No. 5 Winthrop square and examine the special automobile prize. This beautiful machine will belong to some candidate in five days more.

The four-cylinder 1913 runabout, sold and guaranteed by the Republic Motor Company of the Motor Mart, Park square, will be the property of the best subscription hustler among you, candidates, at 10 p. m. next Wednesday night.

The Mysteries of Hypnotism and Personal Magnetism Revealed

Herbert L. Flint, one of the best known hypnotists in the world, has just published a remarkable book on hypnotism, personal magnetism and magnetic healing. It is by far the most wonderful and comprehensive treatise of the kind ever printed. Mr. Flint has decided to give, for a limited time, a free copy to every person sincerely interested in these wonderful sciences. This book is based upon years of practical experience by a man who has hypnotised more people than any other one person.

You can now learn the secrets of hynotism and personal magnetism at your own home free.

Hypnotism strengthens your memory and develops your will. It overcomes bashfulness, ... hope, stimulates ambition and determination to succeed. It gives you that self-confidence which enables you to convince people of your real worth. It gives you the key to the inner secrets of mind control. It enables you to control the thoughts and actions of others. When you understand this grand and mysterious science, you can plant suggestions in human minds which will be carried out in a day or even a year hence. You can cure bad habits and diseases in yourself and others. You can cure yourself of insomnia, nervousness and business or domestic worry. You can instantaneously hypnotize people with a mere glance of the eye without their knowledge and powerfully influence them to do as you desire. You can develop to a marvelous degree any musical or dramatic talent you may have. You can increase your telepathic or clairvoyant powers. You can give thrilling and funny hypnotic entertainments. You can win the love and everlasting friendship of those you desire. You can protect yourself against the influence of others. You can become a financial success and be recognised as a power in your community.

This book of Flint's will tell you how to learn the secret of attaining these things. Flint is the most successful and best known hypnotist in the world. He has appeared before thousands of audiences. He will carry out every promise faithfully. If you want a copy of this free book, send your name and address on a postal card—no money—to Herbert L. Flint, Dept. 30B, Cleveland, Ohio, and you will receive the book by return mail postpaid.

AWFUL MASSACRES OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN BY TURKS REVEALED

One of the most interesting and graphic accounts of Turkish atrocities in the Balkans which has so far reached Boston and which explains the real reason for the Near-Eastern war, is contained in a letter received by J. J. Bosdan of this city from his sister, Miss Olympea A. Bosdan. Miss Bosdan writes with awful detail of the fiendish cruelties wrought by the Turks, especially upon women, as follows:

It is impossible for the Western world to appreciate the significance of the present conflict between the Christians and Mohammedans in the Balkans. But yet this is not a dispute of creeds. The real life and death struggle that is going on in Macedonia is a battle between two civilizations—the Occidental and the Oriental.

I have traveled about in Macedonia and throughout the little Balkan kingdoms, through towns and villages and the countryside, and in the course of my wanderings, both before the war and since, I came across thousands of people of various Balkan races and divers creeds. I lived amongst villagers and interviewed them day after day. And after all I have come to the firm belief that the present war is a war of rebellion. The Christian rebellion against Moslem rule.

A Harrowing Tragedy.

Just before my visit to Northeastern Albania one of the most harrowing of tragedies was enacted in the southern outskirts of Scutari. The population of Scutari is composed of Turks, Albanians, Serbs and Greeks. Almost all these are Roman Catholics. They are a peaceful tribe and Turkish subjects. They are a very handsome race and very industrious. They are the descendants of the heroic tribe who left their native land and settled on the eastern coast of Sicily rather than submit to Moslem conquerors whose mission was to convert "by fire and sword." After the Montenegrin war of independence, a century ago, some of these Albanians answered the call of nativity and settled in Northern Albania, near the frontiers of Montenegro and Servia.

The pretext of the persecutions here was that these Albanians were Roman Catholics, and Italy, also a Roman Catholic country, had robbed Turkey of its African territory. Therefore the Roman Catholic Albanians must be exterminated. The first thing that came to my notice was the Nogi tragedy.

On October 15, 1912, shortly after midnight, seventeen Roman Catholic Albanian families were slaughtered by a band of Anatolian irregulars, headed by a young officer, Ismael Rushty of Afium Karahissar, Asia Minor.

The father of one of the families, Mitro, had been dismembered and hacked to pieces; the body of his wife, Kalistani, was covered with dagger wounds; his eldest son, Kustanza, had been tortured and then crucified; a younger son burned alive, after he had been submitted to the most cunning refinements of cruelty. I personally inspected the mutilated remains of more than fifty victims of this terrible tragedy. It is unbelievable, and I should have doubted the accuracy of such an account had I not observed the unrecognizable bodies of these twentieth century martyrs.

Nineteen Children Among Victims.

Amongst the many headless that were dumped into the ravine I counted nineteen children—few of them could have been more than ten years of age—while eight of the bodies were those of women. Three of the women were absolutely nude, with their breasts slashed off. And the only reason for this was that Mitro, the elder of the family, refused to surrender three beautiful young girls to the messengers sent by the Turkish major, Salah Eddin!

The Turkish garrisons in the Balkans, from time out of mind, have been in the habit of descending upon undefended Christian villagers, carrying off the women to the mountains and returning them degraded and dishonored. And let it not be forgotten that these crimes have been committed against peaceable agricultural people, who have never taken part in any uprising whatever against the Turk's rule.

Some time after this event I crossed the Drin River and reached Prisland, in the Province of Kossovo, in company with a Russian officer, Selvinski, and his daughter. Prisrand had just been the theatre of a frightful crime. Many Christians had been murdered. Some of them been burned in their houses. A young, pretty, school mistress, twenty years of age, a Greek and a member of the Greek Orthodox Church; Manelaghos Ghorgious; his wife and three daughters; two other young girls from Adrianople who were visiting Ghorgiou, and a Bulgarian peasant, Mintos, were all slaughtered in one house, by a band of twenty-five soldiers from the Salonican regiment.

Killed for Spurning Officer.

The young school mistress had spurned the Turkish officer's attentions. The captain condemned the school mistress "to death after dishonor." At the time of this crime she was in the house of Manelaghos Ghorgiou, and all the witnesses of this dastardly crime perished with her. Next day the fiendish author of the crime carried a braid of the young teacher's hair through the Serb section of the city. He was instantly stabbed to death by a Servian priest.

The body of the school mistress was headless, and it was only possible to establish her identity by the aid of some trinkets which had been sewn on her dress. Her limbs had been consumed by fire.

I would gladly refuse to believe the reports of such ferocity, but I have seen it all with my own eyes and the very reality of it overwhelms me.

In company with a French journalist and his wife, I questioned the notables of the place, and received the information that the village of Roshu in Kossova, had been punished for refusing to surrender a young girl into the hands of a Moslem band. I was informed that at Tragovisti there had been more decapitations. Another colleague, a Swiss woman journalist, Miss Ella Friter, joined me in obtaining an exact account of this Tragovisti atrocity. We received our information from the relatives of the victims.

Husbands See Wives Tortured.

Two women, near the village of Tragovisti, both mothers, one the wife of a Greek Orthodox priest, the other wife of a Roman Catholic, both living in the same house, were subjected to horrible tortures, both of them before their husbands and children, their hands tied, were compelled to be present, mute and helpless spectators of the vilest crimes of which fiendish ingenuity of mind is capable. Father Theophilos's child, four years of age was beheaded.

I traveled through the provinces of Walachia, Scutari, Janina, Kossovo, Moldavia, Monastir, Adrianople and Salonica, and more than two hundred cities, towns and villages throughout this unhappy land, and everywhere I saw men, women and even children dying, with the proud and ardent boast on their lips, "Zito! We are Christians! We die, but our children will be free!"

Rather than submit to the Moslem yoke they have faced death in its most horrible forms. Is it strange that these long suffering races forgot their centuries-long differences and drove the Moslems to the Tchatalja lines? What will happen to the Moslem when the Christians come to power? That is another story. Is it any wonder that, heeding the portentous notice, when they heard the last hours of the Moslem rule in the Balkans had struck, the Mohammedan population deserted their countryside and escaped en masse, in panic to Asia?

Sing the "Marseillaise."

Before the war I had visited high and grammar schools in sixty important cities of Macedonia and as many boys' and girls' elementary schools. I have inspected their classes and questioned their pupils. Whenever I entered any schools, be . Greek, Bulgarian, Servian or Albanian, it was invariably the rule they in every instance sang the "Marseillaise" in honor of us visitors who had journeyed so far to visit them.

No matter what school I visited, Helenic, Serb or Slav, whenever I asked them to what race they belonged, in every case they answered in one voice, "We are Christians." I knew from that time that even the children of tender age were being prepared for the federation of the Balkan nations.

One of the first things the children in Macedonian schools have been taught for the last twenty years is, that there is a free Hellenic kingdom, a free Bulgarian nation, a free Servia, and a free Montenegro, which watches over them and looks forward to the time when they, too, shall be free.

No people has ever worn the tyrant's chains so impatiently as have the enslaved and oppressed Macedonians. The young men have been trembling on the brink of revolt, dreaming of the thrice happy day when the flags of the United Balkans would float over the ancestral home and the Turk be driven back to Asia.

Few Turkish Schools.

Before the war there were in Macedonia 998 Greek schools with 59,640 pupils and 782 Bulgarian schools with 39,468 pupils. In this are not included the Albanian, Servian and Roumanian schools, also various Roman Catholic and Protestant missionary institutions.

There were only one or two Turkish schools in all Macedonia. Many thousands of Moslem children, the children of better-class Mohammedans, receive their elementary, and in many cases, their high school education in Christian schools. Wherever you go, you see Christian institutions—schools, colleges for boys and girls, hospitals, orphan asylums, great co-operative industries. While illiteracy amongst Christian Macedonians is an exception, amongst the Moslem population it is the rule. If you seek intellectual companionship, if you would talk literature, art, science, politics, it is always to the Christian you must address yourself.

MRS. GUGGENHEIM WAHL, WHO LOSES BY JUDGE'S RULING

MRS GRACE GUGGENHEIM WAHL

WOMAN LOSES GUGGENHEIM DIVORCE CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—Mrs. Grace Brown Herbert Guggenheim Wahl today lost her fight to set aside her decree of divorce from William Guggenheim, the New York millionaire. Judge Heard held that Mrs. Guggenheim was a party to fraud in the divorce and a beneficiary from it, and therefore could not bring action to set the decree aside.

Mrs. Wahl secured her divorce in Chicago in 1901. She sued to have the decree set aside on the ground that she was not a resident of Illinois at the time.

Since the divorce her former husband, youngest of the seven Guggenheim brothers, has married and has a child. This fact had nothing to do with the decision, Judge Heard said. Today's decision disposes finally of the action.

Judge Heard held that Mrs. Guggenheim was a knowing party to the fraud practiced before Judge Dunne, now Governor-elect of Illinois, who granted the divorce.

"Where persons impose upon the court no sentence within the power of the court is too severe to be imposed," declared Judge Heard.

"What is now the duty of the court? The maxims of equity are plain. One is that he who comes into court must come with clean hands.

"Fraud can be a shield, but never a sword. This court cannot help Mrs. Guggenheim to extricate herself from the position in which she has voluntarily placed herself. The bill is therefore dismissed."

Mrs. Wahl was not in court, neither was Mr. Guggenheim.

LAWSON WITNESS IN MONEY TRUST INQUIRY TUESDAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier and one-time business associate of William Rockefeller, probably will be the first witness called by the Pujo "money trust" investigating committee when it meets on Tuesday. Lawson's testimony, it is said, will relate in part to the occasion some years ago when he, with Rockefeller, got control of the Butte, Montana, Copper mine.

Counsel Samuel Untermyer has gone to Albany, N. Y., where he will cast his vote in the electoral college of the State of New York. Before leaving, Mr. Untermyer refused to divulge any plans regarding the testimony of William Rockefeller.

ORDER TO DETAIN MYLIUS' EDITOR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Orders have been sent by the Department of Commerce and Labor to Commissioner Williams at New York to detain E. H. James, editor of the Paris Liberator, the publication which printed the alleged libelous statement that King George had married a daughter of Admiral Culme-Seymour before he became King, and had two children by her. James is due in New York from Europe on the Provence today or Sunday. If James acknowledges that he, not Edward Mylius, who was imprisoned in England for uttering the libel, was responsible for the charge against King George, he will probably be deported.

MEXICAN REBELS MADE PRISONER SHOOT BROTHERS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 11.—Rebels who destroyed the town of Ayotzingo on Wednesday, killing the garrison of 150, have attacked the town of Juchitepec, and the situation is desperate. Terrible depredations by the rebels are reported by refugees. A federal dispatch bearer was captured and his ears and nose were cut off. Five mule drivers were lined up and drew lots to see which should shoot his companions to death. Three of them were brothers, but the rebels compelled one of them to shoot his relatives and companions.

BURN 'TOM JONES' AS IMMORAL BOOK

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The Doncaster Corporation Free Library committee has destroyed a copy of Fielding's novel, "Tom Jones." A member who read it for the first time reported it as immoral. Notwithstanding one Alderman, who said the book was more valuable than history as a faithful picture of Fielding's times, a resolution to burn it was carried.

MEYER STARTS HIS FIGHT FOR 3 BATTLESHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Secretary of the Navy Meyer before the House Naval Affairs Committee today urged appropriations for three battleships despite the one battleship plan of last year, and the movement now on foot to restrict the authorization to the same number at this session.

Secretary Meyer told the House Committee that on the completion of the Pearl Harbor naval station in Hawaii, the United States will have practically unprotected what is intended to be the most powerful and important naval station in the world.

The appearance of the secretary before the House committee means the beginning of the fight between the Navy Department and the House on the subject of battleships. Secretary Meyer also urged the House committee today to authorize liberal increases in the other branches of the naval service.

POWERS TO URGE SUBLIME PORTE TO YIELD TO ALLIES

LONDON, Jan. 11.—"Adrianople is the Alsace-Lorraine of the war." This declaration today by one of the Bulgarian envoys indicates the determined attitude that the allies have assumed in demanding the full price of their victory over the Turks.

Turkey's hopes that she may be able to save Adrianople undoubtedly have been revived by the threatening attitude of Roumania. In this attitude Roumania is believed to be backed by Austria, as otherwise she would not urge her claim so energetically against Bulgaria in contrast with the pacific position she had assumed a fortnight ago.

The powers are awaiting the result of the representations to be made to the Constantinople government by their ambassadors in the Ottoman capital. Their note probably will be delivered next Monday to the Turkish government.

SLOT MACHINES BRING FINES TO 10 GLOUCESTER MEN

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 11.—Ten local merchants were fined $5 each by Judge York today for having in their possession gaming implements unearthed by the Watch and Ward Society during a recent investigation here.

The so-called gambling implements in question consisted of various kinds of slot machines kept by the merchants at their respective stores. The prizes won by playing these machines ranged from a stick of chewing gum to a handful of cigars.

Want a Job? Here's One: Work 16 Hours a Day, Pay $322 Year

WANTED—Man for Postmaster; salary $322 per annum, $6 a week, 88 cents per diem; willing to work 16 hours a day in summer, from 6 a. m. till 10 p. m. Apply to UNCLE SAM.

This is the advertisement that Uncle Sam may have to insert in the papers 'ere long to get a postmaster for the town of Lenox. For Eugene L. Tinker, who has been postmaster for the past twenty-nine years, has tired of his job and has resigned. Here is Postmaster Tinker's estimate of the work on his "nothing-to-do-till-tomorrow" job:

Worked twenty-nine years for $9,338.

Sold stamps and attended to mail all day from 6 a. m. till 10 o'clock at night, for eighty-eight cents a day.

Swept out office, took mail from cars and lugged it to and from office.

Handed out information to everyone.

Pay per hour, five and a half cents.

But there are some good things to the job Mr. Tinker will admit. For instance there is the chance to meet and know great men. During his twenty-nine-year tenure of office Postmaster Tinker has sat on the cracker box and swapped yarns with notable men like Mark Twain, Grover Cleveland and Richard Watson Gilder, who have visited Lenox in Summer.

Tars Say Admiral "Butted in" Before Mascot Goats Did

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A mascot—to be or not to be. Over this question the enlisted men of the navy and Rear Admiral R. M. Doyle are locking horns.

It will be remembered that a mascot goat at the Norfolk navy yard, where the admiral is commandant, butted the admiral, thereby upsetting his dignity and riling his official feelings so much that he at once promulgated an order barring all mascots—goats, parrots, monkeys, dogs and other pet animals from the battleships and other naval vessels at the yard.

Now the jackies declare that Admiral Doyle "butted" into affairs outside his jurisdiction. Scores of letters of protest have poured in on Beekman Winthrop, acting secretary of the navy. The Navy Department also is wondering whether Admiral Doyle did not overstep his limits when he undertook to issue an order as to mascots on ships over which he has no semblance of command.

Girl Strikers Hurl Cots About in Cells, Rattle Doors, Sing

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Women introduced suffragette methods into the garment workers' strike today.

Nineteen women and girls were arraigned in the Manhattan Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, and fined $5 apiece, with the option of spending three days in jail. Only one paid a fine and the other eighteen, choosing to become "martyrs," were taken to the Raymond Street Jail. On the way they sang the "Marseillaise" and created such a disturbance that it was feared they would wreck the prison van.

Once inside the jail their violence increased. They screamed and rattled the doors of their cells and hurled their cots about. Finally, when they became physically exhausted, their noise subsided.

BABY PRINCE TO BE PAGE AT THE GOULD WEDDING

LONDON, Jan. 11.—The Duke de Talleyrand, the Duchess, his wife, who was Anna Gould, and their small son, Prince Howard de Sagan, will be guests at the wedding of Miss Helen Gould and Finley J. Shepard. They sailed today from Liverpool on the Mauretania.

Prince Howard will be a page at the nuptials, it is reported here. If so, he will be a charming and picturesque page, but a duodecimo page, nevertheless, for he will not be four years old until July 16 next. He has a few other names—Charles Maurice Pierre Jason—but he is called by the name of his American uncle, Howard Gould.

The very young Prince came into possession of the title when his father renounced it, becoming Duke de Tallyrand on the death of his father early in 1910.

"What date is fixed for Miss Helen Gould's wedding?" the AMERICAN correspondent asked the Duke.

"I regret much but I cannot reveal that," answered De Talleyrand. "I am in the confidence of the Gould family regarding that."

But he told a close friend whom he met at the hotel that he would reach New York with three days to spare before the wedding.

Each of the 100 girls in Miss Gould's sewing schools at Tarrytown has been asked to contribute ten cents to buy her a bridal gift, Miss Winifred Wees says.

Guarded by detectives is a mysterious object which is believed to be the wedding present of the Duke and Duchess to Helen Gould.

The de Sagans are accompanied by thirty-seven trunks, seventeen boxes, four maids, two valets, a footman, a courier, seven dogs—and the object of mystery.

The opinion holds that the Duke and Duchess have purchased a royal present for Miss Gould. Whether it is an old master, as might be assumed from its size, or something more recent, but as costly, remains to be seen.

This Wife and Mother Wishes to Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By All Means Write to Her and Learn How She Did It.

For over 20 years James Anderson of 166 Elm Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a very hard drinker. His case seemed a hopeless one, but 10 years ago his wife, in their own little home, gave him a simple remedy which, much to her delight, stopped his drinking entirely.

To make sure that the remedy was responsible for this happy result, she also tried it on her brother and several of her neighbors. It was successful in every case. None of them has touched a drop of intoxicating liquor since.

She now wishes everyone who has drunkenness in their homes to try this simple remedy, for she feels sure that it will do as much for others as it has for her. It can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell you what it is. All you have to do is write her a letter asking her how she cured her husband of drinking and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope. As she has nothing to sell, do not send her money. Simply send a letter with all confidence to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above, taking care to write your name and full address plainly.

(We earnestly advise every one of our readers who wishes to cure a dear one of drunkenness to write to this lady to-day. Her offer is a sincere one.)

HAVE GIVEN ALL FACTS, HEARST TELLS SENATE CAMPAIGN INVESTIGATORS

Suggests That Committee Call for Original Letters from Archbold and Foraker.

your committee and produce the originals of these Standard Oil letters, inasmuch as the originals ought to be of more value to you and to the real purposes of your investigation than any photographic fac similes can possibly be.

Since your committee is so anxious to get every possible fac simile that may directly or indirectly relate to the undue political influence of privilege-seeking corporations upon amenable public men, it must, of course, be more anxious to get every possible original relating to that important subject.

When I went before your committee in the hope of aiding your investigation I called your attention to the fact that Mr. Archbold in his evidence had stated that he regained possession of some of the originals of these Standard Oil documents. Senator Pomerene of Ohio declared that Mr. Archbold had regained only a few of them. But be the originals that he regained few or many, I fully realize that your committee ought to be and must be as anxious to get every one of those originals that Mr. Archbold possesses as you are to get every one of the fac similes that I possess.

Since that time I am informed, as above stated, that more originals have been repurchased through the colored lawyer Gilchrist Stewart, and the white lawyer Paul D. Cravath, by the Standard Oil Company and at the instance of Mr. Foraker. Thus there is, fortunately, therefore, additional material at your command and material in its original shape and not in photographic fac simile.

There is another matter which I would respectfully call to your attention, and that is that the testimony of many of the men implicated in the Standard Oil scandal does not harmonize with the facts as revealed in their correspondence with the Standard Oil Company.

This is notably so in the cases of Mr. Archbold, ex-Senator Foraker and ex-Senator Scott of West Virginia.

Perhaps the most flagrant case is that of ex-Senator Scott, who testified before your committee that he did not know of any one who was associated with the Oil Trust making a contribution to the State campaign in West Virginia, and yet his letters and telegrams show him acknowledging the receipt of just such contributions from Mr. Archbold, the political purchasing agent of the Oil Trust.

It seems to me that in this instance and in the light of events generally my policy of publishing only a part of these incriminating letters at a time, and allowing the gentlemen implicated to entangle themselves in the mesh of their own contradictions and prevarications has been amply justified.

In this way we secured Senator Foraker's various admissions and contradictions.

In this way we secured Mr. Archbold's admission that he had sent Senator Penrose $25,000 and the admission of Senator Penrose that he had received $25,000 of Standard Oil money.

In this way was brought about the contradiction of these gentlemen as to the purpose for which these amounts were intended until finally the fact was revealed in Senator Penrose's fac simile receipt that he received and acknowledged the money as chairman of the State committee of Pennsylvania. In the same way ex-Senator Scott had been led to make statements at variance with the facts, not knowing that there were documents as yet unpublished which would reveal the truth.

From the beginning there has been nothing that the whole discreditable Standard Oil crowd wanted so badly as the publication of all the letters at once so that they could know just how much evidence there was against them and could cut their prevarications to suit to the cloth of known facts.

I have taken the liberty of making these suggestions in addition to furnishing my evidence because I would like to make it clear to you that, far from withholding anything from the inquiry I am contributing everything that I possibly can to aid your inquiry, and as a matter of fact have contributed practically all the information which made your inquiry necessary and made it possible.

Furthermore, my statements are not like Senator Foraker's, who made a ridiculous statement before your committee and excused himself from possible consequences by saying that he was not willing to vouch for it.

I have assumed that your committee wants statements that people are not willing to vouch for, but even if you did want them I do not make statements that I am not willing to vouch for and, what is better, to substantiate by documentary evidence.

I came home from abroad especially to testify before your committee and to assist your committee in securing evidence against the privilege-seeking interests and the public men whom the privilege-seeking interests had attempted improperly to influence.

I brought before you, not in response to a subpoena, but at your invitation merely, all the letters that seemed to my mind to come within the scope of this investigation and I have since sent you all the other letters which your own interpretation of the resolution under which you act enables you to ask for.

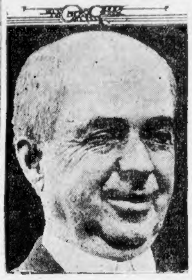

I have done this not merely because your committee requested me to do it, nor merely because I desired to oblige its individual members, but because I believe that the most important thing for the citizens of the United States to do at this time is to stop the attempts of privilege-seeking corporations unduly to influence political parties and public officials through campaign contributions, legal retainers and other more secret and scandalous devices.

In order that the citizens may remedy these conditions they must first know to what a dangerous and discreditable extent these conditions exist, and it was for the purpose of making these conditions known to the citizens that I have gladly given to the public whatever information relating to these subjects I have in my possession and have suggested to you, with all respect, the way in which you may secure the original documents which the Standard Oil Company and their financial and political associates now hold in their possession.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

QUESTIONS FOR SENATE PROBERS

Will the Clapp Committee subpoena PAUL D. CRAVATH to explain his deal with the negro, Gilchrist Stewart, to buy back from William W. Winfield the original Foraker-Archbold letters?

Will the Clapp Committee subpoena PAUL D. CRAVATH to produce the ORIGINAL FORAKER-ARCHBOLD LETTERS?

Will the Clapp Committee ask Paul D. Cravath how much money was turned over to Stewart for the job and who provided the funds?

Will the Clapp Committee recall Foraker and ARCHBOLD to identify these repurchased originals and explain why they bought them back?

Will the Clapp Committee ask the negro, GILCHRIST STEWART, today WHO sent you to Paul D. Cravath, on Saturday, December 14, 1912?

WHO employed you to go to Chicago, December 17, 1912, to buy the Foraker-Archbold original letters?

WHO gave you the money to pay Winfield for the letters, and how much were you given to use in the deal?

What statement did Louis B. Anderson draw up for you to get Winfield to sign?

What telegrams did you receive from Foraker while you were negotiating with Winfield in Chicago?

What did you tell Paul D. Cravath over the long distance telephone from Chicago, Saturday morning, December 21, 1912?

ARCHBOLD AND FORAKER BUY BACK OIL LETTERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—John D. Archbold and Former Senator Joseph B. Foraker, with the aid of Paul D. Cravath, and a negro lawyer of Chicago, named Gilchrist Stewart, have bought back the famous Foraker-Archbold Standard Oil letters.

The Clapp Investigating Committee will have no longer to deal with fac similes. The purchase of the troublesome documents was consummated Saturday night, December 21, 1912, in the back room of Gumb's Cafe, No. 2000 State street, Chicago, by Stewart.

Stewart is the man who supplied the signed statement with which Foraker made a futile effort to distract attention from his own guilt as established by the Standard Oil letters, published in the Hearst newspapers and magazines. Senator Foraker read this statement to the Clapp committee on December 18.

In handling the deal, Stewart worked under the immediate direction of Paul D. Cravath, one of the Standard Oil lawyers in this city.

Can Get Full Story.

When the Clapp committee resumes its session and examines Stewart, who is under subpoena, it will have at its command the entire curious story of the latest coup manipulated by the Standard Oil lawyers.

The letters were not bought back for the benefit of the Clapp committee, it goes without saying, but the timely discovery of the surreptitious negotiations will undoubtedly be taken advantage of by the committee.

The committee will learn from Stewart's lips, if he is vigorously questioned, the story of his conferences with Former Senator Foraker in Foraker's apartments in the Waldorf-Astoria, where the scheme was hatched.

It will learn of the instructions sent to Stewart by Foraker, over the long distance telephone from Washington on December 14, to see Paul D. Cravath.

Got Letters From Winfield.

It will learn how Paul D. Cravath sent Stewart post-haste to Chicago to open up negotiations with the negro dining-car porter, William Winfield, for the purchase of the letters.

It will learn how many thousands of dollars Stewart took with him for the enterprise, where the money came from and all the interesting details of Stewart's bargaining and working on the cupidity of Winfield.

The entire story from the date of Stewart's arrival in Chicago down to the eventful Saturday night when Stewart was able to ship the documents to Paul D. Cravath is obtainable.

The Clapp Committee will have no serious difficulty in extracting the truth from Stewart, it is believed, for the reason that it will have at hand the telegrams and letters sent to Stewart by Foraker.

The committee will also have available

Notes Testimony of Many Standard Oil Men Does Not Harmonize with Writings.

the record of long distance telephone calls between Stewart in Chicago and Paul D. Cravath in New York, while the negotiations proceeded, as well as the testimony of Louis B. Anderson, the Chicago lawyer in whose office Stewart made his headquarters; the testimony of Philip H. Brown of No. 3022 South State street, Chicago, to whom Stewart freely unbosomed himself in his pride at being employed, as he put it, "On the biggest proposition that a negro ever had an opportunity to get into."

Additional interest is lent to the opportunity thus afforded to the Clapp committee to obtain the story of this latest Standard Oil move by the announcement, through the Associated Press, that Winfield has also been subpoenaed for the same hearing to which Stewart had been summoned.

Testimony of Winkfield will not be taken until Monday.

The committee today sent a cablegram to London requesting John L. Eddy, one of those said to be interested in the purchase of the Archbold letters, to appear before it.

The committee will not subpoena William Randolph Hearst for further testimony until other witnesses have been heard.

A Chronological Summary.

Here is a chronological summary showing how Archbold, Foraker, Cravath and their agents went about the work of recovering the fatal letters, which any careful and impartial questioning of Stewart and Winfield today will disclose:

On Saturday, December 14, 1912, Stewart, being then in New York at 239 West 63d street, received a telegram from former Senator Foraker, sent from Washington, instructing Stewart to call Foraker on the telephone, "North 30."

Stewart telephoned to Foraker and was instructed by Foraker to see Paul D. Cravath, one of the Standard Oil New York attorneys.

Stewart saw Cravath and was employed by him to go to Chicago and make a deal with the negro Winfield for the return of the originals of all Standard Oil letters in Winfield's possession.

Stewart received several thousand dollars with which to consummate the deal with Winfield.

SAFETY FIRST

Of late the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company has been severely arraigned in political and press attacks. The former will be answered in due time in the courts.

I would, however, ask the indulgence of the press and the temporary cessation of its hostilities for a few weeks, pending the reconstruction period through which the Company is now passing.

No railroad in the country is fully equipped with No. 20 cross-overs, but the Public Utilities Commission of Connecticut has ordered that all trains in that state shall come to a full stop before switches are thrown at anything less than No. 20 cross-overs.

This means, to maintain the efficiency of our service, a half million dollars to be expended in reconstruction of cross-overs, switches and signals, and the materials therefor have been ordered. Meanwhile, in compliance with the order of the commission, there is a necessary slowing down, making for irregularity in the train service, especially during the winter months when it is more difficult to make up with safety for the running time cut out of our schedules.

It is believed that a new time schedule pending this reconstruction period will insure greater safety. It should be put into effect, according to present plans, about February 2nd.

Reconstruction of cross-overs will follow, and in a few months the old time schedule should be restored and maintained with the greatest punctuality consistent with safety.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Main Line should be maintained as the safest railroad in the United States. It has been largely rebuilt and its electrification inaugurated during my administration, and no passenger loss has been met with by reason of this reconstruction.

I desire now that this newest reconstruction shall be had without accident, and therefore ask the indulgence of the public and the press, and particularly the press, because attacks upon a railroad management during a reconstruction period have possibilities of demoralization in the personnel and working forces that directly increase the hazard of railroad travel.

Generally speaking, the hazard of railroad travel is less than that of street or other highway travel, but the responsibility in railroad travel is more directly upon the authorities, who are held in full measure of responsibility for every accident whether or not such may be due to causes absolutely beyond their control.

At the present time the traveling public and the press can assist in increasing the safety of travel by rail on our lines by suspending criticism and judgment concerning delayed trains for a few weeks.

CASSIDY PRAISES NEW BOSTON REGULATION TO KEEP FOODS CLEAN

A regulation to stop the spreading of disease by dust falling on foodstuffs exposed for sale, has been drafted by the Health Commissioners. Harry P. Cassidy urged such a regulation, in an article in the AMERICAN last Monday. The regulation has been sent to the State Board of Health for approval. Mr. Cassidy says: "It should be approved and put in force at once."

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Foodstuffs should be protected from dust while they are exposed for sale. The order drafted by the Boston health commissioners to this effect is a good one. It should be approved by the State Board of Health, and put in force at once.

In my article last Monday, I described conditions in your best meat shops—in the district about the market. In the shops inside the market building, the meats are in less danger of gathering infected dust, for there is none of the street filth and a relatively small amount of dirt is tracked in by visitors.

Danger Even to Life.

But in the stalls along the street outside, you will find conditions that threaten the very lives of any purchaser. It should have been the province of the housewife long before this, to insist that the store where she buys her meat and vegetables, observes the first principles of sanitation. What the housewife has not done, the Health Commissioners now seek to do. They have attempted it before, but have been blocked by an interpretation of the law. A law recently passed is believed to give them the power to make this regulation. If it does not give that power a new law should be passed, and the rule should be put in force.

Two devices are used by some of the meat shops outside the market, to protect their wares. One of these is a covered rack in which the meat is hung. The rack has a glass front, which is raised when more meat is to be sold. These same shops, also, usually have their meats on the tables wrapped in white paper, only the sliding end being exposed.

But in the majority of shops the meat is bare and catches all the dust. And that dust bears bacteria of all descriptions.

The New Regulation.

The regulation urged by the Health Commissioners is thorough. Section 7 reads in part as follows:

"Except during the process of sale, or while in the act of loading or unloading vehicles, no cut meat, fish, shucked shell fish, dried or preserved fruits, dates, figs, cut fruits, cut melons, cracked nuts, nut meats, popped corn, candies, confectionery or bakers' products, which are intended for sale for human food, shall be conveyed from place to place, or kept in an OPEN WINDOW OR DOORWAY OR OUTSIDE A BUILDING, OR IN ANY PUBLIC OR PRIVATE WAY of the city of Boston, unless so covered with clean material and so placed as to be protected from dust, flies and animals."

That first section contains the pith of the regulation. It would mean that meats in stalls in the market district would be displayed only under glass or some other material that would keep off dust. The law might be complied with by covering the wares with clean cloth, perhaps, or even with clean paper.

If this regulation is adopted and enforced rigorously the dangers that lurk in impure foods would be tremendously lessened, and the death would lose 90 per cent. of its power to spread disease.

Section 2 of the regulation provides that the occupants of stores and the owners of stands, stalls or pushcarts where food is sold "shall maintain the same in a clean and wholesome condition."

It is scarcely conceivable that such a regulation as this has not been passed before. Its force is simply this: "Stores must be kept clean." This rule is the very fundamental of intelligent protection of the public health. I do not believe there is a civilized city in the world today where places where human food is sold are not required to be kept in "clean and wholesome condition." This clause in the new regulation is apparently simply a reaffirmation of the requirement under which all food merchants must conduct their trade.

Another Health Provision.

Section 3 of the regulations reads:

"All persons while engaged in the handling of articles of food in a room, stall, building or other place where food is sold or for sale shall wear clean outer garments, and shall be free from contagious and infectious diseases."

This regulation is one worth a column in itself. Any one who has entered the food shops of the poor sections of the city has been nauseated and disgusted at seeing men or women in greasy, dirty clothing—clothing that bears the stains not only of the food shop but of the household drudgery that is the lot of many small storekeepers. In the North or West ends it is a familiar sight to see a woman, wearing an apron that evidently has served as dish and hand towel after the morning meal, slicing meats, wrapping vegetables and attending to customers.

LIFE PRISONER GIVES A VIOLIN TO TETRAZZINI

A violin, made in the State prison at Charlestown by Charles Alberto, one of her countrymen, serving a life sentence, has been received by Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, who makes her last appearance for this season in Boston at the orchestral concert at the Opera House tomorrow afternoon. The instrument is of excellent tone and fine workmanship.

The singer was deeply touched at the tribute from one who never had the opportunity of hearing her, and she immediately sent a cordial letter of thanks.

TELEPHONE GIRLS CUT THE HATPINS; DO IT BY MACHINE

Yes, they meant it. The Boston telephone girls, when they declared for short hatpins were sincere. Look at any of them today and you will see for yourself. They've clipped them all short. And they had a little machine to do it. Every one was shorn. He's the way they did it:

'Twas at the meeting of the union. Outside the door was a little machine. It looked very much like a harmless little pencil sharpener. In reality it was a point cutter.

SEMBRICH SAYS AMERICA HAS NO REAL CHILDREN

DENVER, Jan. 11.—"There are no children in America; they are all grown up," declares Mme. Marcella Sembrich, who is here on a concert tour. She continued:

The girl of fifteen has nothing before her. She has been trained by novels and stage to think marriage a state of rosy bliss and kisses. She rushes into matrimony and the divorce courts. I cannot understand it. Why, the girls over here don't even know how to cook!

Bud Fisher's Latest Outrage

His Apology:

RIGHT off the reel let me state coldly, frankly and unblushingly that I am a firm believer in Shakespeare's classic remark, "Get it while the getting is good." Of course Bill doesn't know that he said that because his phraseology was somewhat different, but his words were to that effect. The above explanation is meant to convey the reason why Book Three of this conglomeration of junk is placed upon the market this year. Two years ago Book One was shoved forth, and I got away with some easy change (of course this will break the publisher's heart); nevertheless it's a fact. Such being the case, we pressed that bet and tried it again last year with Book Two, thereby adding several pieces of the monetary standard to the old cash can of We, Us and Company. Now, while I claim to be a very modest young man and my publisher a very modest old man, we, nevertheless, decided that we should be a couple of prize boobs if we failed to try and hook you, gentle reader, once more. Therefore, we herewith produce Book Three, hoping that you and the rest of the public come across as generously as in the past two years, or twenty-four months or one hundred and four weeks, or any other old way you wish to figure it. We hope you will enjoy this book your fifty cents' worth, but let us declare ourselves right here, that whether you do or not, your fifty centimes will not be refunded. However, if you fall for this one and like it we shall be greatly pleased, because you might buy again next year. We will positively publish them one book per year as long as you purchase. If you stick with us long enough, we promise to make Rockefeller look like the ashman.

Next year we shall offer valuable coupons with the book, the outside cover counting as one coupon. The first person sending us fifty thousand covers will be entitled to get his shirt washed for nothing. Don't feed the animals as you pass out.

BUD FISHER.

Our Advice:

Take a tip from Shakespeare, via Bud Fisher, and "get Book Three while the getting is good." It's one howling, driveling scream of merriment from cover to cover—60 pages. Don't wait until they are "all gone." For seven Boston American coupons and only 25 Cents. By mail, 35 Cents. Here's Coupon No. 1. Start your set Now.

WILSON TO URGE INDEPENDENCE OF PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Tariff revision, Philippine independence and probably currency reform are included in Governor Wilson's legislative program for the extra session of Congress, which he will call soon after he becomes President. The Democratic party is already committed to tariff revision, and Governor Wilson, it is learned on good authority, wants the bill for Philippine independence, now before the house, brought forward as soon as possible after the Democrats take over full control of the government.

Currency legislation is still among the uncertainties. Governor Wilson is said to have left that entirely to the House leaders and it is still an open question what they will do on this score. To take up currency would mean that Congress would be kept in session until September or October, and this may deter the Democratic leaders, as they have had two successive all-Summer sessions and will probably want to quit as early as possible this year.

It has just become known that Governor Wilson is heart and soul in the plan to get rid of the Philippine Islands as soon as possible. On his way from Washington to Staunton, Va., last month the Governor talked for an hour and a half on the Philippine question with Congressman William A. Jones of Virginia, chairman of the Committee on Insular Affairs and author of the pending bill.

Mr. Jones did not expect the President-elect to commit himself on the matter until after he became President. Much to Mr. Jones' surprise, Mr. Wilson tackled it in his speech delivered at Staunton the next day.

He referred to the Philippines as one of America's borderlands and expressed the hope that it would soon cease to be.

WATER WAGON JOLT KILLS BILLYGOAT

SOUTH NORWALK, Ct., Jan. 11.—Napoleon, the famous livery stable goat who imbibed, is dead today from a fall off the water wagon. On January 1 Napoleon was made to join the "Never Again Club." Each day the goat appeared at the back window of the bar, watching the selfish customers who declined to invite him to drink. Friends of Napoleon noticed he was getting thinner and paler, so on Thursday he was given a drink. It was too much and he passed away.

INCREASE PAY OF ARMY AVIATORS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Carrying $93,830,177, nearly $3,000,000 over the amount appropriated last year, the Army Appropriation bill has just been reported to the House. A fifty per cent. increase in the salaries of Army aviators is provided.

SURELY SETTLES UPSET STOMACHS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Ends Indigestion, Gas, Sourness and Heartburn in Five Minutes.

"Really does" put bad stomachs in order—"really does" overcome indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, heartburn and sourness in five minutes—that—just that—makes Pape's Diapepsin the largest selling stomach regulator in the world. If what you eat ferments into stubborn lumps, you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food and acid; head is dizzy and aches; breath foul; tongue coated; your insides filled with bile and indigestible waste, remember, the moment Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. It's truly astonishing—almost marvelous, and the joy is its harmlessness.

A large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin will give you a hundred dollars' worth of satisfaction or your druggist hands you your money back.

It's worth its weight in gold to men and women who can't get their stomachs regulated. It belongs in your home—should always be kept handy in case of a sick, sour, upset stomach during the day or at night. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

HELENA STALLO OF CINCINNATI, WHO IS FIANCEE OF PRINCE

Miss Helena Stallo and Her Millions to Go to Prince Murat

PARIS—Jan. 11.—The engagement of Miss Helena McDonald Stallo to Prince Michel Murat was made known here by publication of the banns of marriage.

Miss Stallo is the younger daughter of Edmund K. Stallo of Cincinnati, and a granddaughter of Alexander McDonald, who was reported to have left millions to herself and her sister Laura.

Prince Murat is a lineal descendant from the famous Marshal Murat, who married Caroline Bonaparte, and a nephew of the ex-Empress Eugenie, who from her sick bed at Farnborough, England, cabled her congratulations.

Prince Michel was brought up in Russia, his mother being a Russian Princess. He is twenty-five, and a typical Murat, six feet two tall, with strong features and intelligent, piercing eyes.

He first met Miss Stallo three months ago at a dinner given by Mrs. Rutherford Stuyvesant, and finding she frequented the Palais de Glace for skating the Prince became a fixture there, warmly wooing her in that frigid atmosphere.

The wedding, which will be a quiet one on account of the death of Prince Louis Napoleon Murat, will take place the first week in February in Paris.

FLYNN AND WIFE WED AGAIN; THIS TIME BY PRIEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—"Lefty" Flynn, Yale star football player, and the show girl bride whom he wedded last Saturday in the City Hall, are now doubly wed.

Mrs. Flynn told a reporter that a second ceremony had been performed by a Catholic priest. She refused to say when or where this had been done.

Hadley Talks on Flynn.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 11.—President Hadley broke his rule about not discussing specific cases of undergraduates for the newspapers when he told why "Lefty" Flynn, the great Yale fullback, who married Miss Leary, a show girl in New York, could not come back to Yale. President Hadley said:

> The presumption is against the fact that an undergraduate cannot support his wife unless he has asked the consent of his father. If he has married without his father's leave, it is a grave offence against academic discipline and against law.

50 AT WORKHOUSE SEE 10 WHIPPED WITH CAT O'-NINE-TAILS

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 11.—While fifty spectators looked on ten men, eight negroes and two whites were whipped with a cat-o-nine tails in the yard of the New-castle County Workhouse at Greenbank today.

The floggings were administered by Chief Warden Crawford of the workhouse, and from ten to twenty lashes were given, according to the offences of the prisoner. The two white men were John Smith, a wifebeater, who got twenty lashes, and William Woods, a chicken thief, who got ten lashes, and a year in prison for the theft of chickens from a colored neighbor.

As John Collins, a negro, was trussed up for his beating, he turned to Warden Crawford and exclaimed: "Boss, please don't hit too hard, for I'm one delicate man."

EX-REPRESENTATIVE LOUIS FOLEY DEAD

Former Representative Louis A. Foley of Ward 20, who for the past two years has represented his district in the Legislature and was defeated for the Senate this year, died suddenly at his home, No. 19 Corona street, Dorchester, early today. Foley was a lawyer, with offices in the Beacon building.

HARRIMAN'S ESTATE FIXED AT $75,000,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Edward H. Harriman's estate amounts to from $70,000,000 to $75,000,000. This estimate was reached by the transfer tax appraisers, with a complete inventory in hand.

The Temptations of a Working Girl

By Hal Reade

A Thrilling Story of the Trials of a Beautiful Girl in a Great City

PART I.

WHEN his employer suggested a mock marriage, he hastened to his side and, leering into his face, said: "And not marry you, eh, Mr. Wharton."

"Exactly so," replied Wharton with a grin.

"Exactly so. You could never think of marrying a common working girl, could you, Mr. Wharton?".

Bates looked proudly at his master and rubbed his hands enthusiastically.

"Certainly not, Bates."

"What a magnificent man you are, Mr. Wharton. I could almost kiss your feet, Mr. Wharton."

Bates humbly bowed before him as a heathen bows before an idol.

"That will not be necessary, Bates, and I shall treat you well."

"I know the man we need, Mr. Wharton, and quite a crony of mine, sir. Very clerical looking, sir; smooth face and austere, sir. Got a pale and interesting face, sir. Got it in prison, Mr. Wharton. He is all right, sir,' cackled Bates.

"Thank You Bates"

"Than' you, Bates; you may go."

"Yes, Mr. Wharton; thank you, sir."

Bates left the room bobbing up and down like a toy Chinese mandarin sold in the shops. Wharton walked over to the table and sat down in the chair which Mrs. Malloy had occupied. As he did so Bessie entered the room, hugging the rag doll and singing:

"Little Bo Peep she lost her sheep,
And she didn't know where to find them.
Let 'em alone and they'll come home,
Dragging their tails behind them.

When she saw Wharton she was not in the least abashed, and cried:

"Hello, man."

"How do you do, little girl. Who are you?" replied Wharton, chucking Bessie under the chin.

Wharton disliked children and avoided them as much as possible, thinking they were a nuisance. In turn, children rarely made up to him. Bessie was an exception, as she made friends rapidly, and had always been welcomed by everyone in her home circle

"I'm mamma's girl," she replied cunningly.

"Oh, you are, are you? And where is your papa?" laughed Wharton.

"I don't know. My mamma never told me."

"Your mamma never told you your papa's name?"

At once his interest was renewed.

"No, sir. I've asked her and asked her, and she says his name was just papa."

"Well, what is your mamma's name?"

"Her name is my mamma, Annie Lawrence."

Wharton started back as if he had been struck a blow in the face. He became deathly pale and stared about him hopelessly bewildered. For a moment he had lost the nerve of which he had boasted so proudly. Looking again at the child, he gasped: "My God! My own child!"

Bessie had danced up to him and was holding her doll up before him.

"Say, mister," she cried, "do you want to kiss my dolly?"

"No—no, my little girl," he said, avoiding her.

"Well, then, do you want to kiss me?"

"No, little one, your mother might not like it," he said to the child. But to himself he muttered: "God help me—I can't."

"God Help Me!"

Bessie burst into laughter, and dancing about the room, pointing her finger at him, she cried: "Ha-ha-ha-ha-ha, 'fraidy cat, 'fraidy cat. 'Fraid to kiss a girl. 'Fraid to kiss a girl. Ha-ha-ha!"

She was still laughing and jumping on her toes when the door opened and Mamie entered.

"Ainsleigh Wharton! What are you doing here?" she cried, starting back in surprise.

"I have come on an errand of mercy," he said, glad of the interruption, and once more assuming the air of bravado and indifference.

"Go, Bessie dear, go to auntie," said Mamie, taking the child by the hand and leading her to the door.

"All right, Mamma," but at the door hse turned, and looking again at Wharton she cried, "Good-by, 'Fraidy-cat,' I wanted you to be my beau, but I don't want a fraidy-cat for a beau. Ha-ha-ha."

Mamie indignantly faced Wharton. She was thoroughly angered and arounsed.

"Mr. Wharton," she cried, "I canot understand why you would come here to my house. Please say what you have to say. Mr. Fallon will return here shortly, and if you two meet under the circumstances, there will be trouble."

"Miss Malloy," he replied, "I presume you are aware that the circumstantial evidence against you is absolutely conclusive, and that if I insist in prosecuting you that prison and punishment would be your fate."

"Pray do not speak so loudly, Mr. Wharton," she looked over her shoulder, putting her finger to her lips. "My old blind mother is in the next room, and we have not told her one word of my trouble. I know that my chances to prove my innocence are slim, but I am innocent of stealing your money and God knows I speak the truth.'

"And I believe you," he said heartily. "My action today was based upon my severe disappointment at the discovery of the money in your jacket pocket. Notwithstanding all of that, I am satisfied that some one else stole the money and placed it there."

"Mr. Wharton!" cried Mamie indignantly.

To Withdraw Charge

"One moment, please. I have made up my mind to withdraw the charge. In fact, I have already done so. You will be free tomorrow morning, for without a prosecuting witness they cannot try you for the offence."

"I thank you from my heart for that," she replied, blushing prettily. "As God knows all things, He knows that in honest truth I deserve your lieneney."

Wharton walked over to Mamie's side, and, looking earnestly in her eyes, said:

"I love you, Mamie Malloy, honestly, truthfully love you, and today when you indignantly refused my offer it only served to show me that you were a good, pure girl, and worthy to be the wife of any man. What do you say?"

Mamie stepped away from him.

"I thank you for your offer, Mr. Wharton. Give me until tomorrow night and I will answer you."

Wharton could scarcely suppress his look of satisfaction over his conquest.

"Very well, Mamie, I"——

The sentence was never finished, for at that moment Annie entered the door.

Mamie gave her a look of welcome, and joyfully cried, "Is Jack"——

"No. He has gone home," said Annie, "to explain his absence to his mother. He will not be back for some time, Mamie. Will you please leave the room, and keep Bess away? I want to see Mr. Wharton alone."

"Certainly, Annie," she replied, leaving the room.

Wharton had been silent during the conversation, looking from one girl to the other. Then he faced Annie with an air of indifference which he did not feel.

"I had been waiting for this chance for months, said Annie, "but you have always been where others were, and I would not speak, as I have kept my shame a secret from every living being but one."

"And now that we are alone, what can you have to say to me?" asked Wharton, with curling lips.

"Not much. But what I do say I shall mean. The words have been burned into my brain by injustice. My heart has been turned into a stone and petrified by a flood of bitter tears that can only come from a broken heart and the ashes of a ruined life."

Annie was strong in her sense of right.

"Go on, what do you want?"

"Justice for My Child!"

"Justice! Justice for me—justice for my child!" she demanded.

"Now, see here, my girl; don't begin a tirade, it will do you no good. I have done very nicely by you. I permit you to work at the factory and pay you good wages,' Wharton blustered.

"I earn my wages. I have been silent as long as I am going to be. You will marry me, right my wrong and give my child an honest name, or I shall expose you to all the world."

"That threat doesn't frighten me in the least. Go on! What else?" said Wharton with relief.

"My drunken old father."

"What of him?" A tone of fright had crept into his voice.

"He begged me, he prays to me, implores me for the name of the man who ruined me, and the moment I tell it to him, he will spring on you like a hungry beast and kill you.

Both were startled by the sound of the opening of the door. Annie's father staggered in and sank helplessly into a chair.

Wharton heaved a sigh of relief.

"Father!" cried Annie.

"Hello, Annie. I have been looking for you everywhere."

"I will bid you good evening, Miss Lawrence," said Wharton, pretending that the conversation had not been on such a great subject as Annie and her father. You may have a holiday," he continued, "you have asked for, and your wages will go on just the same."

Wharton walked quickly toward the door, glad of any excuse to avoid a conversation which was so painful to him. Annie stopped him and whispered, "I'll give you just two days to think it over. I should tell him now, but I cannot forget that you are the father of my child."

When Wharton left the room, Annie walked over to her father and shook him. "Father, father!" don't go to sleep here. You have been drinking too much today."

"No, Annie, I haven't been drinking so much. I only had ten beers and six whiskies."

"And when are you going to stop, father?" she asked, with tears in her eyes. "Is this to go on and on until you fill a drunkard's grave?"

Her father looked up with horror in his eyes. "Don't talk that way, Annie, it gives me the shivers."

"Go look in that mirror, father and see what a wreck you are," she said, pointing to the glass on the wall. "Think what a nice looking man you used to be and what you are now."

"Not on your life, Annie, will I look in that mirror. I looked into one on a furniture wagon this morning, and I was so scared that I ran away."

He laughed feebly and sank again slowly into a drunken knot.

Annie looked at him hopelessly, wiping a tear from her eye. Then she opened a table drawer, took out a faded bridal veil and orange blossoms. Shaking it out she moved it over to her father and held it up before him, arousing him from his nap.

"What! What is it, Annie, what's that?" he said, straightening up in his chair.

"Mother's bridal veil. Mamie has been keeping it for me. I was afraid you would find it and pawn it with all the rest," said Annie sadly.

"Nellie's wedding veil. I can see her in it now and the white roses at her throat. She was a pretty bride, was Nell. Poor Nell, laying out there dead, with her hands—her tired hands, over her breast.— She worked hard for me, Nell did."

"And do you remember the times we used to have?" Annie knelt beside him.

"Yes, Annie, and the Christmas times how we used to put you in bed and hang your stocking up and fill it," he said, a flood of memories sweeping over him.

"Father would you want mother to see you now?" Annie kissed his hand.

"No, no, Annie! God forbid, it would break her heart," as he staggered to his feet.

"As it is breaking mine." Annie was weeping bitterly.

"Do you see that, Annie? Do you see it? Well, I'm done with it. I swear it by the soul of my dead Nell, that, so help me God, I'll never drink another drop."

Her father had drawn a bottle of whiskey from his pocket and dashed it to the floor.

"Father! Father Thank God. He has heard and answered my prayers."

Annie fell weeping in his arms.

"What's wrong, Annie?" said Mamie, entering the room.

"Nothing," exclaimed Annie through her tears. "Everything is right. My father will never drink again so long as God lets him live."

"Oh! I'm so glad—so glad, Mr. Lawrence!" shaking his hand.

"Let me go, Annie, up to our rooms. I want to be alone. Alone with my memories to Nell—and alone with God!"

He walked slowly from the room, his hand to his eyes.

"There, there, Annie, don't cry. It will be all right now," said Mamie, kissing her fondly.

CHAPTER VIII.

THE day had been a weary one for Mamie. Accustomed as she was to the vicissitudes of life in the poorer quarters in the city, this was the first time that the full force of the trampling of the poor by the rich had been felt by her.

She dreaded the morrow, but the thought of Jack's love she welcomed as only a woman can welcome the love of a man whom she can respect and who can guard and quiet her.

Annie knew of what she was thinking, and kept silent.

Seated at the table, she thought deeply of the past, hopefully of the future. With a bright smile she hailed Jack's entrance.

"Here I am, Mamie!" he cried.

"I didn't mean to be so long. I went to tell mother."

"Yes, so Annie said. And I'm glad, for a boy who don't forget his mother is not likely to be such a monster to his wife."

Jack took her hand and kissed it fondly.

"I saw Wharton and Bates in the street just now. I wonder what they want around here?" Jack did not say that he had watched them for a long time, and then only hurried for Mamie to put her on her guard.

"Wharton was just here and asked me to be his wife."

"What! He dared?

Jack was angry and suspicious. Much as he loved and trusted his sweetheart, the power of money can conquer even love.

"There, there now—don't fly off like that; he has withdrawn the charge against me. I just ached to tell him what I think of him, but I dared not anger him until after I am discharged in the morning. He is waiting until tomorrow night for my answer. Then the case will be disposed of and he will get it!"

Mamie kissed away the frowns which had gathered.

"I Am Proud of You"

"You are a brave, clever girl, Mamie, and I am proud of you, and you must not anger him, or he would turn right around and prosecute me to get even with you."

"And why should he, Mamie?" Jack was all smiles again.

"Oh, because you say you love me."

Jack pulled a revolver from his pocket and laid it on the table.

"Why, Jack, what do you want with that?" said Mamie, with a laugh.

"I don't fancy Wharton's call and Bates being with him, that's all. I will feel better if you have it."

Jack kissed her good night and left the room, saying he would see her early in the morning.

Bessie darted into the room through the door leading to Mrs. Malloy's bedroom.

"Mamie and auntie want me to come to their room."

"All right, chicken, skip along."

Scarcely had Mamie left the room before the door was opened and Wharton entered and looked about the room. Turning, he called Bates to come in.

"No one here," he said to him "and if anyone should come simply ask why I sent for you, and I will take care of the rest."

"Yes, Mr. Wharton."

"Now listen, Bates. Annie Lawrence was, or is, here. I want you to watch her like a terrier watches a rat."

"Yes, Mr. Wharton."

"She threatened me with disgrace and death tonight." Wharton clenched his fist with an expression of deadly hate.

"Yes, Mr. Wharton."

"And I want you to kill her."

"It is worth $2,000 to you to get her out of the way."

"Yes, Mr. Wharton, you are very generous."

"Are you sure you have the nerve?" Wharton turned on the man, fearing that at the last moment he would not serve him.

"I have killed two before this, Mr. Wharton, and made nice, neat jobs of both of them, sir. Go and leave me alone, sir."

"Be careful Bates," said Wharton leaving the room.

When the door was closed Bates crawled under table, pulling down the cover so as to conceal himself from Annie and Mamie, who entered after he went into hiding.

"Don't feel badly Annie; don't cry."

"How can I help it? To hear my innocent child prattle over her doll and ask for her father. Go back, Mamie, go back to your mother. Let me sit here awhile by the table; I wish to be alone."

"All right, Annie; but don't stay too long. Come in mother's room and we will cheer you up."

To Be Continued Monday.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Today the automobile trade and ardent motor fans begin an exodus from Boston to the big New York shows. It would seem that every other person in the automobile industry in Boston has planned to spend some time during the next ten days in Madison Square Garden or the Grand Central Palace. All of the New England distributors will be on hand in their particular display to meet the New England agents who will journey to New York to look over the last word in motor car construction. The one o'clock train today will take away the first delegation, but a larger crowd will go over tomorrow afternoon.

* * *

Larry Gardner, the dashing third baseman of the world's champion Red Sox, was in town yesterday displaying the handsome souvenir received by the world's champions. He visited the Stutz Motor Car Company, and told Manager Chase he was proud of the racy Stutz roadster he and Harry Hooper purchased last Summer.

* * *

Harry H. Knipper, who represented the Warner Instrument Company in this city and later became their factory representative and manager of the Detroit branch, will continue in that capacity. While he will be factory representative for the Warner instrument, yet under the amalgamation of the Warner and Stewart interests he will be assistant manager to E. W. McGookin, who has been the Stewart agent in Detroit. Mr. Knipper has made a satisfactory deal under the new arrangement.

* * *

George Weatherbee, who is the Hollander Motor Company, is now at Newfound Lake, New Hampshire, fishing through the ice. Reports by long distance phone would indicate that quite a few of his friends will receive a shipment of fish.

* * *

"Bill" McClellan, formerly connected with the sales force of the R. C. H. Company in this city, will go back to his old home in St. Louis as the representative of the Elliott Machine Company of Cambridge. A host of friends in Boston wish him well.

"Eddie" Schean, New England manager for the Charles F. Kellom Company, manufacturers of Invader oil, has returned to Boston after a hurried visit through the Eastern States.

ROSS BILL AIMS TO END FACTORY CHILD SLAVERY

Following the startling expose of child labor abuses published exclusively in the AMERICAN for several weeks, Senator Ross of New Bedford has introduced a drastic bill, amending the child labor laws, in an attempt to protect the child toilers. His measure follows:

Section 1. Section 1 of Chapter 310 of the acts of 1911 is hereby amended by adding at the end the following:

The certificate shall be issued only by the superintendent of schools or by a person authorized by him in writing, or, if there is no superintendent of schools, by a person authorized by the school committee, but no member of a school committee or other person authorized as aforesaid to issue such certificate for any minor then in or about to enter his own employment or the employment of a firm or corporation of which he is a member, officer or employe. The person who issues the certificate may administer the oath provided for therein, but no fee shall be charged therefor,—so as to read as follows:

Section 1. No illiterate minor between the age of sixteen and twenty-one years shall be employed in a factory, workshop, mechanical or mercantile establishment unless his employer procures and keeps on file, accessible to the truant officers of the city or town and to the district police and inspectors of factories and public buildings, a certificate showing that such minor is sixteen years of age or over. Said certificate shall give the place and date of birth of such minor and his personal description. The printed form of the certificate shall be provided by the chief of the district police and shall be approved by the attorney-general.

Section 2. Section 2 of Chapter 310 of the acts of 1911 is hereby amended by striking out the said section and substituting in place thereof the following:

Section 2. Whoever employs an illiterate minor in violation of the provisions of Section 1 of this act shall for each offence be punished by a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $300, or by imprisonment for not more than six months or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Section 3. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

The Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow will publish an exclusive story of child-labor abuses so widespread, and so startling, that it seems almost unbelievable that they possibly could exist.

Hundreds of children are shown to be employed at this particular calling in open violation to the child-labor laws of the State.

A young girl, working from sixty to seventy hours a week in direct violation of the law, receives only $4.50 a week, upon which sum she is compelled to support a blind mother and younger brother.

Still other children, many of whom are under fourteen years old, work equally long hours and support their families on less than $4 a week.

Many of these child slaves are made to take their work to their homes, after toiling in the factory all day long.

All of which is authenticated by an organization of high standing in the community.

These facts will appear exclusively in the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow.

PLAN BILL TO GET RESTELLI MURDER REWARD

That they may get the $500 reward offered by the State for the apprehension of Louis G. Restelli, the Quincy murderer, a bill is to be introduced in the Legislature asking that it be paid to Officer Patrick A. Milford of Quincy and Constable James R. Qualey of Braintree.

Restelli on July 29, 1909, terrorized Quincy by killing his mother, Mrs. Julia Restelli, and Henry E. Hardwick, a prominent granite manufacturer, and by shooting, though not fatally, several other residents.

Officers Milford and Qualey concluded he had committed suicide in an abandoned quarry hole in the woods. The officers on October 14 succeeded in securing the body of Restelli.

CRANK AND GENIUS IN SAME CLASS

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 11.—Cranks, geniuses and freaks are all types of feeble minded and displaying the same psychology, said Profesor Arnold Gessel of Yale, at the mental hygienic congress at Wesley Hall. He maintained that it is often difficult to distinguish between actual idiocy and genius.

BOY BANDIT TELLS WHY HE RAIDED BANK

TILTON, N. H., Jan. 10.—Louis Monchamp, the former student of Tilton Seminary, who attempted to hold up the Citizens' National Bank, today declared that he had been led into his attempt at robbery in the most approved Wild Western style by moving pictures and cheap literature. Monchamp walked up to the cashiers' desk at the bank and drawing two revolvers called upon Charles E. Smith, assistant cashier, to hand over money from the great pile of it on the desk. Smith threw up his hands, at the same time ringing a bell with his foot. Two policemen came and took the youthful would-be bank robber.

The young man had left an automobile about 100 yards from the bank. A long coil of rope was found in the tonneau of the machine.

Monchamp said today:

> It was a fool proposition that I tried to do. I can see it now. But it's too late. I needed money, needed it badly, and this thing to do came to me as the only way to get it easily.
>
> I had been reading some of those wild stories in light literature showing how such things were done, and in the moving picture shows I'd seen how fellows did such things and got away with it. My mind was simply fired by the stories and the "movies" and I picked out the Tilton bank as the best place to go to. I simply had to get money. I wouldn't kill anybody for it, but I planned that I could scare the cashier there and get away with the job.
>
> I simply don't know how it came that I lost myself so quickly. Things didn't go as I thought they would, and I'm not a professional robber. It was my first attempt and my last. Never again!
>
> The first thing I knew the police came, and I was just like a baby then. I had no nerve at all. Although I had my guns it was easy for them to pick me up and carry me away. But I never meant to shoot anybody. I thought only to scare and to get the money.

Mr. Jack Has an Awful Shock

GALLANT AFTER ANOTHER BOUT WITH KENNEDY

By JACK CONWAY.

To the victor belongs the spoils! This well-known adage may now be applied to the case of Steve Kennedy, the clever Lawrence lightweight who won the 133-pound championship of New England by defeating Gilbert Gallant before the Unity Cycle Club at Lawrence last night.

Steve is today being challenged by every lightweight boxer in New England and many others who claim that they are legitimate 133 pounders, but who, as a matter of fact, are welterweights.

Kennedy has a clear claim to the title. He made 133 pounds at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and could have made as low as 133 pounds ringside, without sapping his vitality. Foremost among the men who are seeking a bout with the rugged Lawrence battler is Gilbert Gallant.

The Chelsea youth is not in the least bit discouraged by his defeat, which was the first that he has received during his career in the ring, and he is certain that he would be able to reverse the tables if another contest were arranged.

Kennedy put up a rattling good battle and he deserved to win. His wonderful speed, footwork, blocking and continual use of a snappy left jab caused the downfall of Alex McLean's protege.

Gallant's defeat does not mean that he will never gain a prominent position in the ring. He is but twenty years of age and has still got plenty of time in which to win honors as a boxer. The Chelsea boy is also fortunate in having Alex McLean as a manager. McLean is a close student of the boxing game and his instructions should be of great aid to his protege.

Today's Best Sport Tale

By TOM McCARTHY

THE famous Mike Kelly was a unique character. He never gave the future much thought, but while he played he was one of the most popular ball players that ever went on a diamond.

Tom McCarthy tells a story about Kelly that shows something of his peculiarities. It seems that Kelly was needed for two games with the Giants, and the manager told him if he would keep straight and be in fine shape he would make him a present of a fine umbrella. The manager later told Mrs. Kelly of the present that her husband was to get for riding on the water wagon.

"Well," she said, "I hope you get him a straight handled umbrella."

"Why?" asked the manager.

"So he won't leave it hanging on some bar rail," she replied.

Tigers Retain Clarke and Keene Fitzpatrick

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 11.—Announcement was made here today by the board of control of the University Athletic Association that Keene Fitzpatrick, the varsity trainer, and William J. Clarke, the baseball coach, have both signed contracts to remain at Princeton.

Clarke, whose three-year contract signed an agreement to remain here for another five years, but the length of Fitzpatrick's term was not made public.

Clarke was formerly a member of the New York National League team, while Fitzpatrick came here from the University of Maine.

PLAN BIG BOOM FOR SPORTS IN WINTER

A conference to boom Winter sports, such as hockey, skating, curling, snowshoeing and all other outdoor sports, will be held on Thursday evening, January 14, in the office of the recreation division of the Boston Park Department, No. 26 Talbot avenue.

Organization secretaries and individuals interested are requested to send names, addresses and positions of those who might profitably be present. It is suggested that no more than five representatives of any single organization be sent to the conference, in order that all organizations may be equally represented.

Dartmouth to Have Gymnasium Team

DARTMOUTH, Jan. 11. — Dartmouth has added another branch of athletics to its list by the formation of the first Dartmouth gymnasium team. Dr. Bowler has been planning a team of this sort for two or three years, but not until this season has sufficient interest been shown to organize a gymnasium team.

Gail I. Gardiner of Prescott, Arizona, has been elected captain of the team, and he will start work immediately with his men. Thirty-five candidates have reported thus far, among them being F. H. Colby, '14 and E. C. Lamson, '15, [illegible] Exeter gymnasts. "Bobbie" Hogsett, the football star, is also a likely candidate for the team.

If the team fulfils expectations it is probable that Dartmouth will apply for admission to the Intercollegiate Gymnasium League, which is now made up of Harvard, Princeton, Columbia and Yale. Two or three dual meets will also be engaged in during the season.

ENGLISH BOAT FOR STANFORD STARS

STANFORD, Cal., Jan. 11.—The new Stanford racing shell, built in England, has arrived. It was brought across the country on flat cars, and will be christened next week on the Redwood estuary by Captain Duryea. The boat was to have arrived in New York in time for the regatta at Poughkeepsie, last June, but was delayed by the seamen's strike. The duplicate of the craft, ordered more than a year ago, was crushed in transit over the Panama Railroad.

Juniors Again Win Track Championships at Technology

According to expectations, the Juniors at Tech repeated their performance of the past two years and won the annual track meet by a large margin. The score was 1914, 38; 1915, 22; 1916, 21; and 1913, 5. Fast times and close finishes were the order in all of the running events. The mile was the big feature. At the crack of the starter's gun, R. Palmer '13, who was not counted on to enter, took the lead and hit up a fast pace. H. S. Benson '16, and A. F. Nye '14, set out after him. Benson passed Palmer after eight laps and then Palmer began to fall behind and Nye passed him. At the last lap Benson was leading with Nye ten yards behind and Palmer at least fifteen yards behind Nye, but with a fine sprint Palmer passed Nye and came in a good second.

The 440 and 880 were both close races and the going was lively all the time. J. W. Bolton '14 beat out T. J. Barry '15 by ten yards in the quarter mile and C. T. Buething '16 was a winner over M. E. Hill '15 in the half by a full twenty yards. The shot put, high jump and pole vault were not of the same quality as the running events.

DE LUCCA BEATEN IN HARD BATTLE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 11.—Tommy Foley of South Boston and Patsy De Lucca of Boston fought a slashing fifteen-round bout here last night with honors about even until the last round when Foley butted De Lucca with his head and opened an old cut that made the claret run so bad that De Lucca was blinded throughout the round. The referee gave the decision to Foley, but many of the spectators thought that it should have been a draw. It was one of the best bouts ever witnessed in this city.

PALZER TALKS OF FIGHT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Al Palzer, back in town, said today that "McCarty whipped me in a fair fight," but asserted that if given another chance he could wrest the white heavyweight championship from his conqueror.

WHITE HOPES TO BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Soldier Kearns and Sailor White will be the headliners in the heavyweight elimination bouts Thursday night at the Forty-Fourth street club.

MONTREAL SEVEN BATTLES B. A. A. AT THE ARENA

The Lineup.

B. A. A.		MONTREAL A. A.

Clifford	c. .... c.	Meldrum
Hicks	r. .... r.	Slater
Osgood	l. w. .... r. w.	Parsons
Huntington	c. p. .... c. p.	Reed
N. Foster	p. .... p.	Nairn
Canterbury	g. .... g.	Finnie

Captain Harry Gardner and his teammates of the B. A. A. hockey seven will try to repeat tonight against the Montreal A. A. team at the Boston Arena their victory of a week ago last Thursday, when they overpowered the McGill team from the same city to the tune of 7 to 4.

The B. A. A. team would take especial pleasure in defeating the Montreal A. A. team tonight, for the two associations have been keen rivals in athletics for many years. This will be the third season that hockey sevens representing these two leading athletic organizations of New England and Canada have competed against each other. Last year the local team scored a victory over the M. A. A. and this year the visitors are out to get revenge. They will present a strong team that will make the locals hustle, and a fast contest will result.

Local hockey fans, however, favor the Exeter street club boys in this contest, as they will in all those to come, so long as the B. A. A. seven continues to make such a clever showing on the ice. There are but few teams which can take the measure of this local team, and as the Montreal team comes here with a big reputation a big throng will be present to see how they compare with the strong local organization.

BROWN ATHLETES TO COMPETE IN B. A. A. CLASSIC

The sport lovers of New England were today elated over the news that Brown University and the Boston A. A. have resumed athletic relations. This means that the Brown relay team will compete in the great indoor classic of the Unicorn Club which will be held next month and also that Norman Taber, one of the greatest mile runners in the world, will compete in the famous Hunter mile.

The "break" between Brown and the B. A. A. occurred several months ago, and it has been impossible to learn the real cause of the trouble. When the B. A. A. sent out its invitations to the various college relay teams to compete at its big indoor meet, it failed to include the representatives of the Providence institution.

This, of course, caused a lot of hard feeling. The B. A. A., however, tried to induce Taber to compete in the Hunter mile, but this runner rightfully refused to take part in the B. A. A. games unless his college relay team was also invited to compete.

Dr. F. W. Marvel of the Providence institution yesterday held a conference with Colonel George B. Billings of the Back Bay Club, the result of which was that Brown has been invited to send a relay team to the B. A. A. meet. The Brown flyers will probably be pitted against Amherst, whom they have met for several years, at the Unicorn classic.

With Taber, Kiviat and Hedlund entered in the Hunter mile, this race should be one of the greatest indoor contests ever witnessed in this country. Kiviat is recognized as the peer of the American milers when it comes to being able to win race after race in record-breaking time, but in Taber, who finished second in the one-mile run at the Olympic games last Summer, and Hedlund he will meet two of the fleetest milers in the world.

Larry Gardner Signs Three-Year Contract With the Red Sox

Larry Gardner, the sensational third baseman of the world's champion Red Sox has signed a three-year contract to play with Jake Stahl's gallant band. Larry is now in this city and is glad that he has settled his business affairs with the Red Sox management.

It is stated that the Vermont infielder was given a good-sized increase in salary as a reward for his grand work during last year's pennant struggle and in the world series.

Gardner is twenty-six years of age and is considered one of the best third basemen in the business. There are many "fans" who believe that he will play an even better game this year than he did last year and that he will be classed with such men as Jimmy Collins and Bill Bradley when the curtain drops next Fall.

Patsy Donovan, former manager of the Red Sox, has been signed to act as scout. He should be a great help to the team.

TRIP TO WASHINGTON FOR MEMBERS OF EVERETT ELEVEN

The Everett High School Corporation has promised to give the football players a week's trip to Washington, D. C., next month, in recognition and appreciation of their creditable work on the gridiron last Fall, and their cheerful and faithful attention to daily practice. The usual post-season banquet was among the propositions suggested, but the executive committee arranged a secret plan of their own to please the boys, and surprised them with the announcement of a trip to Washington, D. C., for every member of the first team and other winners of the 1912 E, with Coach Cleo O'Donnell and Faculty Manager Marks.

NO NEW PARK FOR YANKS UNTIL 1914

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Work on the new park for the New York American League club at Broadway and 225th street has been begun, but it was said today that the new stadium would not be ready until next year, so that the American League team probably will play all the coming season at the National League grounds. When the new stadium is completed each of the three clubs in Greater New York will have modern baseball homes.

HARVARD RUNNERS MAY MEET TECH

The Harvard 390-yard relay team may meet Tech at the B. A. A. games. No race has yet been arranged for the Tech team, and it is stated that the Tech runners are anxious to test their speed against the Crimson.

MATTY MOVES UP A STEP.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Christy Mathewson of the New York Giants, who came into major league harness in 1900, today became "dean of the major league pitchers" through the release to a minor league club yesterday of "Jack" Powell of the St. Louis Americans, who began his big league career in 1899.

DREW GIVEN WARNING.

Howard P. Drew, the wonderful negro sprinter, who got into trouble with the A. A. U. several times because he failed to itemize his expenses at different meets, was notified today he must not violate the rule again.

Crimson Athletic Program Held Up By Delay
FORCE ELECTION BY HARVARD SQUAD

The Harvard football team has decided to hold a meeting to elect a football captain for the year 1913 early next week. The reason for this is the fact that the schedule committee of the Athletic Association is desirious of closing up the dates which it has considered, and in order to settle this it must have the consent of the football captain.

R. T. P. Storer, the junior who has been out with an injured knee, will also be back at college, and will therefore be able to be present at the meeting. As he is a leading candidate for the captaincy, it was felt that nothing could well be done until he was present.

Storer Rules Favorite.

Just now the "dope" seems to favor Storer, although Hitchcock, being a Hawaiian, has a fine line of athletic precedents back of him. The Withingtons both came from Hawaii, and other athletes have also come from there, including Jack Desha of the baseball team, and Alan Lowrey of the present senior class day committee.

Hitchcock and Storer are the only members of last year's football team who will be seniors next year and so one of them is almost sure to be elected, as there is an unwritten law at the big university, on the other side of the Charles, which says that only seniors can lead varsity athletic teams.

Track sports are now beginning to boom at Harvard. At the beginning of the track season, the Harvard authorities look forward to a most successful season.

The reason for this is that the material of this year's track squad is better than it has ever been before. Last year a winning team was evolved out of freshmen material that had not won a single victory, and out of varsity material which had succumbed to Dartmouth and Yale. This year the prospects are even better, and the work so far has justified all possible expectations.

Harvard has already won the cross-country championship. Of the cross-country men, Copeland and Lawless should be stars in the Spring games, the former in the mile, and the latter in the half-mile or mile.

Harvard has always been famous for turning out a set of distance men unequalled in any college save Cornell, and as this is where Harvard expects to figure most strongly, development of these men is being attended to specially.

The Crimson will have R. Boyd, holder of the Harvard-Yale dual record in the two-mile run, and Koch and Warren, either one of whom can do a mile under 4 minutes 30 seconds.

Leslie Star in Weights.

In the weights, there is Leslie, the big senior, whose shotputting is consistently good, and Cable, who can throw the hammer with the best of them and broad jump as well, and there are good second string men in both of these positions.

What is worrying the coaches is the fact that there is nothing in the way of a pole vaulter just now. The track team this year is out to duplicate the performance of 1910, and win the intercollegiate championships for the first time in four years.

"Bullett" Wendell Is Out to Make Place on Harvard Seven

PERCY WENDELL, captain of last year's Harvard football team, is now a candidate for honors on the ice. The husky fullback yesterday worked out with the second Harvard hockey team in its practice game against the varsity at the Arena. "Bullett" played right wing and showed up well. He has not played hockey since his freshman year.

Schoolboy Sports

The Arlington High hockey team found itself yesterday and took the lead in the Interscholastic League by defeating Somerville High. The lack of practice was evident in the play of Somerville and the game that the Arlington boys got in with Melrose a week ago proved very valuable.

Brighton High Has Good Hockey Team.

Brighton High has a fine hocky team this season and the boys are out to win the championship of the Y division of the Boston High School League. In the opening game yesterday the Brighton team defeated Charlestown 7 to 0. The Brighton forwards showed fine form and the defensive work was strong.

Rain of Today Stops Many Games.

The rain early this morning spoiled the chances of nearly a dozen schoolboy games being played today. The ice yesterday was in fair condition and most of the schoolboy players were out for hard work. The Lexington High seven got in its first real workout of the season on Monroe's Pond in East Lexington. Captain Richard Preston put his boys through a long scrimmage and was much satisfied with the form they displayed.

Captain Hurley Is Sore at Weather Man.

Captain Hurley of the Boston College freshmen team is sore at the weather man. Yesterday the ice was in fair condition, but when he got up this morning it had rained and spoiled all chances of his getting the hockey candidates out today for a stiff practice which is very much needed. Hurley has Ramisch, McOwen, Falvey, Toomey, DeCeles, W. Fleming, H. Fleming, Linnehan, Duffey, Sheehan, Gillis, Scolponetti, Fitzpatrick, Ryan, Carens, Sullivan, Mahoney, Gillespie, McCarthy, Fallon, Rowen and several others out for his team, and he wants to get a good line on his players so that he can pick his regular lineup.

"Fido" Kempton Out for Track Honors.

The candidates for the Malden High relay team are practicing three days a week on the Tufts outdoor track Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons being allotted to these boys. Twenty candidates are out for the relay team and Captain Elmer Clapp is confident of developing a strong team. Neil is the only other veteran, but some likely looking new men have reported. "Fido" Kempton, who was the AMERICAN'S selection for the quarterback position on the All Interscholastic team, is a candidate for the team, and Whittemore and Carter are also likely looking youngsters. Malden will meet the Boston College High on February 14 in a dual meet, but the big run will be against Medford High at the B. A. A. schoolboy games.

BAN JOHNSON HELPED FARRELL TO SIGN CHANCE

By SAM CRANE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—The American League, through its leader, President Ban Johnson, was largely instrumental in inducing Frank Chance to sign a contract for three years to manage the Yankees.

This is not taking any credit away from Frank Farrell, who was the prime mover in engineering the big and historical deal. It was Farrell's liberality and sportsmanship that has invariably shown when chances were to be taken that he considered worth the odds, that secured the ex-Cub managers name to a Yankee contract.

Johnson's foresight that has been proverbial for successful results when American League affairs have been at stake, was called into the negotiations as was also President Comiskey of the White Sox.

Possibly it was by reason of Johnson's and Comiskey's longer acquaintance and friendship with Chance that caused those two prominent American League officials to take a hand in the negotiations, but it is more probable that there was another many cornered deal, whereby the new manager and also Owner Farrell was assured that the Yankees would be strengthened by certain star players that would warrant Farrell in agreeing to pay Chance "the biggest salary ever paid a baseball manager."

It will be remembered that when the P. L. was hemming and hawing about the grave danger his crop of oranges was in on account of frost, there were reports emanating from Cleveland that Napoleon Lajoie might have his salary reduced and if the great second baseman "kicked" he might be disposed of by sale or trade.

I look for Lajoie to be a Yankee the coming season.

Just how such another important deal that will strengthen the Yankees, is beyond me, but not to the ones who had the Chance arrangements in charge. When baseball magnates get their wise heads together and mean business, they usually find some way around, no matter how intricate or complicated, to get successful results.

STALLINGS SIGNS A NEW PITCHER

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 11.—Lucien Gervais of Peshtigo, Wis., who distinguished himself while playing with the Pacific Coast teams, will have the opportunity of making good in the big brush next season. Gervais is in receipt of a letter from George Stallings, manager of the Boston Nationals, telling him to report for Spring practice. Gervais made a sensational record as a southpaw twirler with Vancouver.

Amateur Games

The Notre Dame basketball team will play the strong Newport team of Rhode Island tonight in Maynard Hall, South Boston. The latter team is one of the best playing the game today and has a reputation of seven years' standing.

* * *

Company H, Fifth Regiment, of Charlestown, and Company L of the same regiment of Malden, meet at the Charlestown Armory on Tuesday evening, January 14. Intense rivalry exists between these two fives and a good game should result. The Charlestown five, composed of Hurvitz, Murphy, Pearson and W. O'Brien, has been showing good form in practice. The manager of this team, P. J. O'Brien, would like to arrange games at home for Saturday evenings during February.

* * *

The Fitton A. C. basketball team of East Boston would like to play the fastest teams in the State away from home. This team has won forty-three out of fifty-four games in three years and expects to beat its best record this season. Manager E. H. Kerr, No. 90 Chelsea street, East Boston. Telephone Main 1830.

* * *

The West End House Juniors have reorganized for the season and expect to better their fine record made during the past three years. The team is composed of: Captain Lippman and Newman, forwards; Berger, centre, and Blume and Wesley, backs. The team is managed and coached by S. E. Jacobson. As this is the last year that the team will be known as Juniors, he is working hard with the idea in view of making a record which will be hard to equal. Games can be arranged by writing S. E. Jacobson, No. 45 Chambers street, city.

* * *

The St. Mary's C. T. A. Society of West Quincy has organized a fast basketball team and would like to book dates with the fastest fives in the State at or away from home. Those teams desiring games must also be represented by a second team. Manager John J. Boyce, No. 19 Bates avenue, West Roxbury.

* * *

The substitutes of the Page Class basketball team of Roxbury have organized a second team composed of the following men: Davis, Todd and Brown, forwards; Orcutt, centre; Allen, Whitcher and Greenough guards. This team would like to play the fastest fives in the State on the home floor Saturday evenings. Manager A. C. Russell, No. 84 Clifton street, Dorchester.

Governor Sulzer Is to Investigate New York Boxing

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—In an interview published in the Evening World today, Governor Sulzer gives his views on the boxing situation. He states that he intends to make a careful investigation of the laws governing boxing in New York State and if he finds that they allow brutality he will take steps to repeal the measures which now allow scientific bouts.

"If the promoters allow brutality and the general influence is against public morality then I shall use every effort to stop boxing in New York State as soon as possible," said Governor Sulzer. "I am absolutely opposed to brutality. Information laid before me gives me the impression that our boxing matches are nothing more or less than prize fights.

"The law supposes that the boxers intend to try out their skill. I approve of that kind of boxing. But when the clear intent of the boxers is to produce injury it is a different thing entirely. I like boxing and in my younger days did a great deal of it."

LOCKE IS READY TO CLOSE DEAL FOR BALL CLUB

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—William H. Locke, secretary of the Pittsburgh baseball club, is expected to close a deal for the Phillies within a few days. Locke is now in this city, and has almost finished all his plans for taking over a controlling interest in the local National League club. Locke stated today that Governor Tener is the man who has been chiefly instrumental in his buying the Phillies. The Governor has vouched for Locke and has interested wealthy capitalists in this city in Locke and the club, and it is due to the Governor's personal efforts that Locke is enabled to make the deal.

Locke will not state just who are the local capitalists who will help him to buy the club, but he did say that the men are all practical men, well versed in baseball matters.

HUNTER AND SLATER IN FINAL ROUND

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 11.—Robert Hunter, Wee-Burn, and Harold Slater, Fox Hill, will meet here today in the final round of the tenth annual mid-Winter golf tournament. Both of yesterday's matches in the first set were decided on the home green. Hunter defeated C. L. Becker, Woodland, and Slater disposed of I. S. Robeson, Oak Hill.

FORM A CLUB TO HONOR CHANCE

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Jan. 11.—Frank Chance, the new manager of the New York Yankees, is certainly popular here. A club of 200 members has been organized to pay honor to the "Peerless Leader." He will be invited to attend a banquet in his honor while on the way to New York.

WOOD IS TO MEET SYMONDS TONIGHT

Blakely of Waltham had an easy time winning over Ephardt of Boston in the fifth game of the series to decide the New England pool championship at the White Bear room last evening, the final score being 125 to 97. Wood of Pawtucket plays Symonds of Lynn tonight.

GAFFNEY GIVES OUT PLANS FOR PILGRIM TEAM

President James E. Gaffney, owner of the Pilgrims, arrived in this city yesterday from New York and the plans for 1913 were given out. Gaffney is much pleased with having secured George Stallings to manager the team and he expressed full confidence in Stallings' ability to build up a team.

Stallings is confident he will make a success with the Boston club and so enthusiastic is he that he sold his big plantation down in Georgia in order that he may devote all of his time to the Pilgrims. Stallings has been given complete control of the playing end of the club, so much so that he will establish an office of his own at the South End grounds so that he can do his work alone and not interfere with the work at the main headquarters in the Paddock building.

The Pilgrims will leave for the South February 28 or March 1 and the first practice will be held on March 3. Stallings has his plans laid and he expects his ball players to be in the best of condition by March 25. On that day the team will depart from its training grounds and work its way North, playing exhibition games on the way.

Two exhibition games will be played with the Washington Senators and two games with the Baltimore Orioles, and it is expected that the regular season will open with the Boston club at New York.

A big change has been made in the uniforms. The home uniforms will be white with a black pencil stripe. The stockings will be red and blue with a blue cap with a red button. The players will have blue sweaters in the norfolk effect with red pockets, collar, cuffs and a red emblem on one of the sleeves.

The traveling uniform will be gray with a black pencil stripe with the same sweaters as will be used at home.

Mr. Gaffney stated that the Cincinnati club is not after the services of John Kling, manager of the Pilgrims last season. Mr. Gaffney is perfectly willing to have Kling sign with the Reds, but as Kling is still attached to the Boston club a player or two is looked for in a trade.

Manager George Stallings, it is expected will meet Manager Johnny McGraw of the New York Giants, in St. Louis within a few weeks and the Boston manager will talk trade. McGraw has an abundance of outfielders and Mr. Gaffney is willing to buy or make a trade.

A few changes will be made at the South End park, alterations being planned for the enlargement of the ticket offices and other minor things.

PLAN A BOXING LAW FOR MASSACHUSETTS

This is the last day for filing bills at the State House for new legislation, and it is stated on reliable authority that a bill will be filed, the aim of which will be to place boxing on the same firm basis in this State as it now is in New York.

A TALE OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

The story of the play of the same name now being produced in New York.

Copyright, 1912, by Cecil Raleigh and Hamilton by arrangement with the Drury Lane Company of America and Arthur Collins, managing director of the Drury Lane Theatre of London, written from the play.

By BERTRAND BABCOCK

"FROM Captain Sartoris?" she half questioned, half gasped.

"Yes, that's him," returned the jockey; "him as wanted me to pull that horse—him as would have ruined me—as he's ruined her—my sister."

"My boy, my boy, I'm very, very sorry—if there is anything I can do—if presently Myrtle can have a new start in a new land——"

"Oh, ma'am, if it only could be!" the jockey said hopefully and longingly.

"It shall be," she answered, without daring to look at Lambert. "I know that I can promise as much as that for Lord Beverley."

"Thank you, ma'am, from my heart and hers," the jockey said.

But Harry Anson had now served the purpose of the triumphant Tom Lambert and he now found Harry only an obstacle in the path he planned to tread with—another.

"There, there, that'll do, my lad," he said kindly, but firmly and finally. "You go and look after your horse."

When they were alone once more Mrs. Beamish walked frankly to Tom, holding out her hand. But he turned scornfully away.

"Tom, I'm sorry"—— she began.

But he was looking far from her.

Lambert shook his head.

"I was not suspicious, only jealous," she said, "and there's no love without jealousy."

"Then I don't want love; I want comfort," returned Lambert. "I want comfort, carpet slippers and common sense—if the worst had happened it would have lain at your door. Yes, your door and the door of the Chamber of Horrors—if you had not got me locked in."

"You wouldn't have heard what Sartoris said," she took him up. "And then the horse would have been smashed. It was really a blessing in disguise."

"A blessing," he said angrily, "you call it a blooming blessing to be locked up for twenty-four hours with a room full of horrors."

"What do you want—Suffragettes?" she snapped.

"Just for one moment I sank to rest and found myself in the lap of the man that was being electrocuted. Just think of me all alone with those murderers. I cried myself to sleep, and when that man that you sent to unlock the door found me, there I was sleeping like a new born babe with my head curled up in the middle of a murderer's waistcoat. That's what I had for a night's pleasure, and that's wh[illegible] you call a blessing."

Further recital of his night of horrors was ended by the appearance in the yard of Sartoris. Lambert wanted a word with him, and Mrs. Beamish left him saying that he would find her, "where he ought to be but never was, with his horse."

PART II.

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. d'Aquila Has a Final Inspiration

"AH, Lambert, The Whip arrived?" The manner of Sartoris was assured and easy.

Lambert looked him directly in the eye. "Yes, she has," he sputtered, "and she's going to arrive tomorrow, too, you infernal scoundrel! Don't talk to me—don't you dare to show your ugly nose near my horse—or I'll pull it for you."

The smile of Sartoris was contemptuous.

"My good idiot—you are very drunk," he said.

"No, I'm not," disclaimed the trainer. "Then what the deuce do you mean by"——

Old Fairy Tales Made New — The Sleeping Beauty and the Prince — By Nell Brinkley

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

And when Beauty sleeps, the true Prince—Love—can waken her heart and her soul with a kiss.

Nell Brinkley Scorns Fashion's Dictates---Individuality Her Motto

An Intimate Pen Picture of the Famous Young Artist Whose Drawings Have Made Her So Loved by the Feminine Readers of the American

By LOUISE SCHER

"Women wear too many clothes these days," was slowly drawled from a sweet bit of femininity huddled in one corner of a huge arm chair. And, before the writer could squeak another "O" to the already prolonged one being squeaked, the blonde head of the celebrated Miss Brinkley was turned about and the oval of a very pink and rounded cheek cupped in the hollow of a lean, artistic hand, and the interview began. "It's true," she cooed; "you know perfectly well it is. Women leave nothing for imagination, or rather they frill and bundle themselves up to such an extent that they look like waddling ducks, or so many human Teddy bears instead of human beings."

But, Nellie Brinkley," I argued—let it be added here that the artist and the writer are friends, so that friendliness be not mistaken for familiarity) "you can't sit there and tell me that women no longer know the art of dressing well."

"Oh, no," was fired back, "I don't mean all women—just most women. For instance, go out in the street, take those two women walking over there," and Miss Brinkley pointed her finger at two women crossing the street. One was a blonde, frocked in brown from head to foot; the other, of medium height and coloring, was neither one thing nor another. She wore a mixed suit of grayish material with hat and muff of gray fox to match.

"Now what's the matter with them?" was sniffed triumphantly. "Do they look good to you?"

"Nope," I answered; "they don't. What's the matter, though?" "Matter!" said the artist. "Too many clothes and all the same thing. Look at the blonde. She looks just like a bad case of jaundice, doesn't she? Not a sign of individuality. Now take that same blonde, put a navy blue velvet suit on her, trim it with bands of black fur, a black fur toque, leave off that brown tulle ruff and one of those petti-skirts, and see what would happen. Her skin would take on a pink and whiteness that would astonish you; the gold of her hair would take on, against the black of the fur, new lights that would make it positively lovely; and the eyes—can't you just imagine how deep and star-like they would become with deflections of the black and blue?"

Individuality Is Motto

"Well, I guess you are right," I said, "but what I can't understand is your aversion to petti-skirts and ruffs. Every one wears them and they are the style."

"Style—pouff! What do I care for style. Being individual, that's my motto. Unless a woman's that, she comes nearer being a tragedy than a success. And the rule applies, not only to women but to men and everything. It's the keynote of success.

"And by the way, did you know that I'm going to start a new club for the sex and call it 'The Developing Club?'" "A la Lillian Russell?" I interrupted, knowing Miss Brinkley's passion for sea bathing and punching bags. It has been said even by mutual friends of the two that Annette Kellerman has nothing on the lithesome Nellie when it comes to real form and swimming.

"Now, there's a smart woman," she enthused, referring to Miss Russell. "She's doing something, giving something and developing other people's individuality besides her own. But that isn't my idea. What the average American woman needs these days is a school for correct dressing. She should be taught how to dress, when to dress and NOT to OVER-dress. My idea is to write a booklet with illustrations something like this: Blondes—Brunettes. Colors to Wear and Not to Wear, and Ditto for the Other Kinds of Women. Women don't seem to grip that it is very vital to tone themselves in relation to their clothes, so that they stand out and not the garments. The secret of real dressing isn't expensive things, bright colors or lavish ruffs and frills; it's simplicity. Upon that hinges the secret of the whole thing.

"Plainness in dressing doesn't have to spell sackcloth and ashes."

"But," was interrupted, "you haven't spoken about the petti-skirts and ruffs."

"Oh, those things. I hate ruffs for young people. They hide the graceful lines of one's neck, take away the soft curve of cheeks and, besides, I just don't like them. Why, do you know, I met a little, slim thing the other day who told me she wore three petticoats to make her look fat."

"And didn't it?" was asked.

"Seek Right Color"

"It did not," was answered. "She looked like a human tub. Slenderness is the thing women should strive for. Slenderness, next to the [illegible] of right colors, is vital."

"Then you think that there are right colors for everybody?"

"I certainly do. And it applies to men as well as women. I believe that for every person in this world there is a color which suits them best, shows to advantage their own coloring and brings them out like roses after the dew. But speaking of bringing people out," giggled Miss Brinkley, "isn't interviewing the most trying task in creation?"

"Um, um," was eagerly assented, visions of one long stream of personages rising before me from whence ideas had been sapped with nary a thank you from any of them for the sapping.

"I still haven't gotten over the blushing stage," said Miss Brinkley. "Every time I do an interview I have to stand outside a bit before facing the presence, my knees shake and I simply can't remember what I was going to talk about."

"What do you usually plan to talk on?"

"Oh, if it's an actress, her favorite food and exercise or hobby and it usually ends by a regular bout on love or men. There's always a man some place in it. That's part of being feminine, I suppose, and do you know that if you talk with a woman long enough she will mention it herself, and if she doesn't you'll find there is something wrong, or she isn't truly successful. I don't care what a woman does, she must think about a man."

"But you don't," I said, remembering a score of men, young and old, who'd trotted in the train of Nell Brinkley for as long as I could remember, and that was some little while. But she'd have none of them, rich or poor, young or old, handsome or medium—they all looked alike to Nellie. She just gave them one of those gleaming little smiles, sniffed her Michael Angelo nose or looked straight through them with two languid eyes.

Artist Since Six

Since she was six Nell Brinkley has worked with pencil and pen. She has never studied drawing but a few months in all her life. She is twenty-four years old and has developed for herself all the ideas contained in either her pictures or writings. Her originality amounts to positive genius.

When she was a slip of a girl she began work on a Denver paper and before many months had made her way to New York, where she was classed as America's most remarkable artist.

And speaking of illustration, as Miss Brinkley naively puts it, "Any kind of art these days means shocking people techniquely to gain even so much as a first impression."

"And how," asked someone the other day, "does Nell Brinkley take her fame?"

She doesn't take it. She just accepts it, quietly and gracefully. She is never conscious of herself, her charm, her beauty or her power. She's just saturated with her work, and continually hunting new ideas.

Someone asked me the other day to describe Miss Brinkley. As one man puts it, "'Twould be like defining Lilith."

She's just all softness, like thistle-down and as illusive—you think you have her and you haven't. She has blue eyes fringed with black curling lashes, hair like gleaming gold, usually worn in a disheveled top-knot, from which wanton ringlets escape to frame a flower-like face, pink and white as to coloring, with a mouth whose fascination lies in its gleaming teeth and near-by dimples. And last, but not least, Miss Brinkley's chiefest charm is her voice, which is full of plaintive, liquid notes.

Worth Its Weight in Gold

A book has been recently published that shows how strained and weak eyes may be treated by oneself without drugging, how glasses or spectacles may be avoided or cast aside, and how, by strengthening the eyes, the general health may be wonderfully improved.

People who acknowledge their eyesight to have been saved through what they learned of in this book have declared it "worth its weight in gold." We have testimonials of persons who were going blind, or who had been wearing glasses for years, yet they can now see well without glasses! If your eyes are not perfect, whether you wear glasses or expect soon to be compelled to, you ought to send at once and get one of the books entitled "Save Your Eyes." This is an opportunity you cannot afford to pass by. Simply write to Okola Laboratory, Dept. 924C, Rochester, N. Y., and say you want that new book that tells how to save the eyes. It will come promptly in plain wrapper, postpaid, and we hope you will soon join the legions of those who are declaring it to have given them good eyes and good health without glasses.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

Make Way for a New Reform

DAYSEY MAYME APPLETON powdered her nose, and then submitted nineteen different photographs she had had taken.

"Take your choice," she said to the reporter. "You will never know how distasteful this is to me, for I so dislike publicity!

"But I have a message for the world, and must lay aside personal preference while I deliver it."

Here she deviated a moment while she explained that the reason she hadn't delivered this message before was that she hadn't reached the toe of her Christmas stocking any sooner.

"I am very tall," she murmured, "and though I began to throw out Christmas gifts promptly Christmas morning, it was two days later before I reached the toe.

"This is the message I have for the world! The great need of this little mud ball on which we live is a Christmas Gift Clearing House. The New Year comes in heavily laden with reform germs, but not one as important as this.

"Every home in our fair land" (raising her voice a little as all speakers do when speaking of Our Fair Land) "is burdened today with misfit Christmas gifts.

"If there were a Christmas Gift Clearing House these gifts could be taken there and exchanged for things actually needed, and which were superfluous in the homes from which they were brought.

"The bald-headed man could take there the military hair brushes he received from his Beloved Niece and exchange them for a bottle of hair tonic some Sutherland Sister received from a Beloved Cousin.

"Those who received ten gold pens could trade off nine of them for stationery and ink, and those who received an excess of ink and writing paper could make a trade for something to write with.

"The effects of such a place would be most extensive and beneficent. Such a place would clear every home of useless and unnecessary articles, and, moreover, furnish employment for hundreds of clerks in the dull months succeeding Christmas, and employment for a limited number all the year 'round."

Then she powdered her nose, indicating that the interview was ended.

"$8 WAGE MEANS LIVING DEATH"

Girl Tells Her Experience in Trying to Meet Daily Expenses.

The announcement by the Commissioners of Social Service of the Interchurch Federation of Philadelphia that no self-respecting girl or woman can live in Philadelphia for less than $8 a week has been sent broadcast over the country as a warning to women and girls who contemplate looking for work in that city.

This $8 per week is divided as follows:

Room and two meals a day	$5.00
Luncheons	1.20
Clothing and incidentials	1.80
Total per week	$8.00

The commission in its statement declares that "so many dangers beset the self-supporting woman who has an inadequate wage or is out of employment for any length of time that we feel justified in issuing this caution and warning."

The question of whether a girl can live on $8 a week is apparently one much discussed by working girls, as letters are pouring into the AMERICAN office dealing with real life on $8 a week. These letters tell of the struggles and triumphs of girls who have made a successful fight and have lived on this pay, and others, and indeed, of failures.

The AMERICAN invites working girls and women to unite and tell how much they can live on.

Writers of these letters should sign their real names and address, not for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith.

For the five best letters, giving the most information as to how $8 a week may be wisely spent by working women and girls, with every detail of information about food, dress and wages, the AMERICAN will give $10 each.

For ten letters considered to give the next best information on these points, the AMERICAN will pay the writers $5 each.

The letters must be addressed:

The AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass.

By this means the newspaper hopes to get the experiences of girls or women in factories, shops, stores, mills and so on, and in boarding or lodging houses either alone or with companions. All should write frankly of their experiences and give others the benefit of them.

Call it Living Death.

Editor AMERICAN:

Having worked for twelve years in New York, Boston and other cities, and also having kept a large boarding and rooming house, I think I am in a position to know a good deal as to the conditions of this class. I most emphatically declare that living on $8 a week, or rather I should say trying to live, is nothing more or less than a living death.

Girls are doing it, I know, hundreds of them, or trying to, but they cannot keep it up for long.

A girl earning only $8 a week cannot even with the most rigid economy provide herself with even the plainest of foods necessary to keep her sound and well.

I notice in so many letters that no mention is made of "incidental expenses," and yet it is the little things that seem to run away with the money.

I have my account book open before me and these are only some of the "incidentals" which I have been absolutely obliged to buy and which every woman will admit are necessities: Hairpins, needles, pins, cotton, darning cotton, stamps, writing paper, envelopes, soap, tooth paste, church offering, medicine, newspapers, Christmas gifts, birthday gifts, doctor and dentist.

Now if a girl wants one or more of these things is simply means she must go without food in order to get them.

I know how time and time again girls have asked me to let them rest for a week as they must have their shoes mended, or must buy a waist for the store, and I know how hard the struggle has been to pick up that week's rent, sometimes it could only be done by paying at the rate of 15c. or 25c. a week.

I always allowed girls to make tea or coffee in their rooms; this was a great help to them, and I advise all girls to take one meal out only and manage with the other two in their rooms.

I thoroughly indorse the opinion of those who place $10 as the lowest a girl can live on, because I have tried it, and seen others try it.

Saved $2 on $8 for Two.

Editor AMERICAN:

I came to this country three years ago. The first year everything was all right. Then my husband fell in bad company and started to give me only $8 a week. I and my son, eleven years old, lived on $8 for over a year. I paid $2.25 a week rent and 25 cents a week for gas, leaving $5.50 for food and clothes, and I saved $2 from the $8 I got for almost a year.

Last July my husband left us to go to Reading, Pa., without giving me anything. My son got work in September at $6 a week. I give him money for car fare, pay my insurance, $2, leaving to live on only $3.15 a week.

I can do all kinds of handwork. I was out yesterday to find some work, but I could find none. We haven't anybody here and so it is hard.

I owe nothing to anybody.

MRS. L. DENINGER.

Gives Figures to Show That Low Weekly Salary Means Untold Hardships.

Lives on $3 a Week.

Editor AMERICAN:

I do not see why any girl cannot live on $8.60 a week if she is the least bit economical.

Here is how my girl friend and I get along on three dollars a week. We have a large front room in a private family for which we pay three dollars a week, a dollar and one-half apiece. Then we pay fifteen cents for union dues; twenty-five cents for insurance; fifty cents for washing and sixty-five cents for incidentals.

Perhaps you will wonder how it is done. We work in a local shoe factory receiving ten dollars. We go to work at 7 o'clock in the morning and work till 11:50 and then go to a boarding house, where we work from 12 to 12:45, waiting on table.

We eat our dinner and return to work at 1 o'clock, working until 5:50 and then go into the dining room, where we work another three-quarters of an hour. We are then through work at 7 o'clock.

By doing this we obtain our three meals a day, getting the very best of home cooking. We go to a picture house once a week and on Saturday we either go to a good show or go out of town.

Any girl living in Boston, Lynn or any such city having a population of 80,000 or more can easily get along on $8 a week and lead a good, clean life, also save for a rainy day.

If she cannot wait on table she can at least wash or wipe dishes or do slide work.

As for clothes, I dress well, but very neatly. I believe in buying the very best, and a tailor-made suit at $28 lasts me three seasons.

C. B. V.

Lynn.

Tells How She Did It.

Editor AMERICAN:

A woman who knows the value of money can live a respectable life in Boston on $8 a week.

I paid $3 a week for a room within walking distance from my work.

My meals averaged 55 cents a day—breakfast, 15 cents, luncheon, 15 cents, and dinner, 25 cents. Of course I did not have all that I wanted to eat, and saving for clothes meant that I must cut down my food.

My laundry bill averaged 60 cents a week. So far: Room rent, $3; food, $3.85; laundry bill, 60 cents; a total of $7.45.

This leaves only 55 cents for clothes, amusements, doctors' bills, dentistry and car fare on rainy days.

DREYFUS FOE GETS BACK INTO ARMY

PARIS, Jan. 11.—Lieutenant Colonel Du Paty de Clam, prominent in the Dreyfus treason trial, has been reinstated in the French reserves by a decree signed by President Fallieres. He was a foe of Dreyfus.

TELEGRAPH BREVITIES

NEW YORK—When she appeared in court to press her charges against her husband for non-support, Mrs. Theodora Day learned he had secured a divorce from her three years ago.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct.—"I'll stick right here at my bench until I have the money in my hand," said William Woolley, a mill worker, when notified that he had just come into a vast fortune through the death of a relative in England.

NEW YORK—A handsome young woman, who exposed a pair of dainty ankles encased in sheer silk stockings on which green snakes had been embroidered, nearly threw into panic a half dozen masculine guests, who had just come from a prolonged visit to the Ritz-Carlton hotel bar.

PHILADELPHIA—W. C. T. U. leaders in this city have sent letters to the Ritz-Carlton hotel and Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury protesting against smoking by women guests, which has been practiced at different affairs given by Mrs. Stotesbury at the hotel.

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—One million dolars' worth of gems were escorted home safely today and the dancers at the Arabian nights charity ball who wore the gems, pronounced the affair the most successful effort of its kind in Chicago. Incidentally the Lying In and Passavant Hospitals are some $14,000 better off today.

American Tobacco in Lead.

When the New York market opened it was again led by American Tobacco, which started at 291, an advance of a point over Friday's final quotation. The list was irregular in the first half hour, but some issues which were weak at the beginning gained strength on covering for the week end.

Southern Pacific was ⅛ lower at the outset, but soon recovered the loss and gained ⅜. Amalgamated recovered half a point after having opened ⅝ lower. Among the other losses were Utah Copper ¼, Steel common ⅛ to unchanged, United States Rubber ¼, Texas Company ½, Reading ⅜, New Haven ⅞, Mexican Petroleum ½, American Telephone & Telegraph ¼, California Petroleum ¼, St. Paul ⅛, General Electric ½ and Chino ⅝. Reading recovered all its loss and gained ¼ over Friday's closing. Other gains were Union Pacific ¼, Studebaker ½, Northern Pacific ¼ and Erie first preferred ⅝.

Canadian Pacific was weak despite good earning reports opening at 263⅝ against 264¼ at the close on Friday. The Curb was easy. Americans in London were irregular.

Investigating Western Union.

Because the Western Union Telegraph Company is accused of violating the Interstate Commerce law by permitting the use of its wires by certain persons at less than the published rate, the Interstate Commerce Commission has ordered an investigation into the contracts for private telegraph wires and the rules and regulations promulgated by the company. Complaint has been made that gross violations have been made by the Western Union in wire leases and the transmission of private messages free of charge. The American Telephone & Telegraph Company and the Postal Telegraph Cable Company also are made defendants in the inquiry to be conducted by the commission.

Price of Copper.

Electrolytic copper was sold yesterday at 17¼ cents a pound for March delivery, although producers still hold out for 17¾ cents, according to reports. Consumers appear confident that the producers will have to lower their price. It was said in New York today: "The extent of the possible break is estimated variously from ¼ cent to 1¾ a pound."

A Butte special states that the crosscut on the 2,800-foot level in the North Butte property is in the Snowball vein for 24 feet and not through the ore body yet. The ore average about 6 per cent. copper.

Financial News in Brief.

New York Cotton Exhange memberships continue to advance in price. George H. Rhodes has sold a seat to W. R. Clerg for $19,000, or an advance of $250 over the last previous sale.

Small sellers of copper metal are scaling prices in an effort to get business, but the large selling agencies are maintaining quotations at 17¾ cents a pound.

President Theodore N. Vail of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was at his desk yesterday for the first time in several weeks. He will soon go South and then make a trip to Europe, spending a good part of this year on a vacation.

Dealings in Standard Oil shares over the counter yesterday were featured by early strength in Union Tank Line, Atlantic Refining and Standard of Kentucky. All three advanced violently early in the day, but reacted in the afternoon, Union Tank Line declining five points from the high figure.

Forrest M. Towl, J. W. Vandergrift, C. E. Loane, C. A. McLouth and H. C. Dorworth have been elected directors of the Southern Pipe Line Company.

The United States Steel Corporation announced yesterday that any employe holding stock after January, 1914, and working five consecutive years for the corporation or subsidiaries will be entitled to receive a cash payment at the rate of $5 a share for each share of preferred stock held, or $4.50 for each share of common. These employes will also receive a further compensation which cannot at present be announced.

Commercial failures this week in the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., are 363 against 313 last week, 263 the preceding week and 381 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number 32 against 27 last week, 25 the preceding week and 25 last year.

You'll Find Them All IN Sunday's AMERICAN

A Marvelous Etching of Lady Decies

A beautiful etching of the noted American belle, formerly Vivien Gould, by the distinguished French master of dry point, Paul Helleu, probably the most successful and admired delineator of feminine beauty in the world. A page feature in the AMERICAN Sunday Magazine.

A Mother's Cry From the Cell

Angela Morgan's story of the plight of Mrs. Anna May Wells, who is caught in the net of suspicion because of the strange death by poison of two of her children near St. Albans, Vermont.

Boston Society Expands

The limits of the real society of Greater Boston—unique in the entire civilized world—have been thrown wider. Who's who, what's what, and how you get into this most exclusive set—if you could, but you can't—together with stories and pictures of the real leaders.

What's the Price of a Baby in Boston?

You know what you have to pay for a dog, a bird or any other pet. But how about a baby? The Sunday AMERICAN will show how and where you can have all the babies you want for the asking (illustrated). A human interest story of real-life conditions that will amaze Boston readers.

$40,000 a Year for My Clothes

Mona Delza, the newest Parisian beauty, tells why no woman can dress properly on less than this sum—in her point of view.

Jack Rose's Story of the Underworld

The third of a series of remarkable revelations of the 200,000 professional criminals of New York, and how they work undisturbed by the police. In this article Jack Rose—Police Lieutenant Becker's chief graft collector—tells how the New York police collect $16,000,000 a year for protecting criminals.

John D. Rockefeller EARNED a Nobel Prize---Even if He Didn't Get One

Luckily, He Can Do Well Without the $40,000. His Achievements in the Line of Useful Work Will Deserve Many Nobel Prizes in Centuries to Come.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

You have all read about the wonderful French surgeon, Carrel, who won the Nobel prize this year.

Nobel was the man who invented dynamite, and made millions out of the invention.

He left his great fortune to reward the best thinkers in the most important lines of thought and investigation.

This year it is Carrel, of the Rockefeller Institute, who gets the prize of $40,000 for the best work in the realm of scientific medical research.

Dr. Carrel, a marvellous surgeon, a genius of hard work and persistent patience, deserved all that he got and infinitely more.

He is working for the future of humanity, working to diminish suffering, to prevent needless loss of life, and his value to the human race cannot be measured in dollars or in honors that are given and forgotten.

While honoring the Frenchman, Carrel, however, it is well also to remember the American citizen, John D. Rockefeller, WHO MADE CARREL AND HIS WORK POSSIBLE.

If it had not been for Rockefeller and the millions that he has spent and is intelligently spending in medical research and other scientific investigation, Dr. Carrel could not have won the Nobel prize. And the knowledge that Dr. Carrel has given to the world could not have been given.

John D. Rockefeller also deserves a Nobel prize—and a half a dozen of them—although he doesn't exactly need the money.

His institute, combatting children's diseases, has done for the mothers of this country, and for the mothers and children of future ages, work that cannot be estimated, adequately appreciated, or by any possibility sufficiently rewarded.

All the money that is needed, John D. Rockefeller pours out in his right, not to cure individual cases of disease and suffering, BUT TO MAKE DISEASE AND SUFFERING UNNECESSARY AND IMPOSSIBLE.

Without question, demanding only that they shall work hard, and along lines of permanent care and prevention, Mr. Rockefeller supplies all the money that the scientists can use. Infantile paralysis, the dreadful scourge of cancer, the horrible blood diseases that afflict and disgrace the human race, all the ills that we inherit from animal life, from ignorance, filth and brutality, are brought under the microscope in the Rockefeller Institute—and there a wonderful fight is going on against human suffering and needless death.

This newspaper has not been backward in criticising the Standard Oil and other Rockefeller enterprises.

It is also not backward in giving credit to John D. Rockefeller when with the money that he has accumulated he does for the people a work that apparently they have not yet the intelligence to do for themselves.

Who Wants to Sell 100,000 Gallons of Gasoline?

Mr. Flint, of Providence, R. I., Would Like to Hear from a Man with Plenty of Gasoline at a Fair Price.

Copyright, 1912, by American-Journal-Examiner.

Have you any gasoline for sale below the present Trust price?

If you have, write to Mr. Dutee Wilcox Flint, No. 17 Snow street, Providence, Rhode Island, U. S. A.

Mr. Flint is what Americans call a hustler, and he sells automobiles.

His letter just received complains that those who buy his machines have to pay twenty cents a gallon for gasoline at retail, and seventeen cents wholesale.

He knows that at this rate somebody is making too much money on gasoline.

This is what he writes:

"I would like to buy anywhere from 10,000 to 100,000 gallons or more of gasoline, of some independent dealer in gasoline, and have it shipped here in 10,000 gallon tank cars, at a price that would enable me to break the ironclad monopoly that exists at present.

"I have a railroad siding where I can run the tank cars, and deliver from there, as well as two tanks in the centre of the city.

"It is not my intention to make any profit on the transaction, but simply relieve the intolerable position that the users of motor cars face here."

Mr. Flint thinks that we might be willing to interfere with the plans of the Trust.

He is quite right, WE MIGHT.

This announcement will be printed in about 2,000,000 of separate newspapers. If anybody wants to sell gasoline to Mr. Flint at a fair price, this is the appointed hour.

Winter Day Dreams

By WINSOR M'CAY

THE CHEAPEST PET IN BOSTON IS A BABY—If you want a dog, a bird or a poor white rat you have to pay for it, but you can secure all the babies you want for nothing. A Boston woman proved this by advertising in the AMERICAN, and her story, illustrated with pictures of some of the babies, will appear in tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN.

The Snail Is a True Aristocrat with a Family Tree Fifty Million Years Old

Its Ancestors Have Stalked Majestically Down the Eons from the Silurian Era, Crossing Endless Spaces of Time

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

I READ the other day a statement that a snail can safely walk on the edge of a razor. The statement may be true, yet I think I should rather be a fly than a snail in such a situation. But, however that may be, there are few animals that present more points of interest than a snail.

In the first place he is, by descent, an aristocrat, with a family tree at least fifty million years long. As some old families in England boast that they "came in with the Conquerors," meaning that their ancestors may have held the stirrup for William of Normandy when he set out to invade England, so the snail, with his house on his back and his eyes on the ends of his horns, might boast that he came in with the Gasteropoda, meaning the "belly-footed" tribe of mollusks, who began to spread over the earth in that measureless expanse of prehistoric time called by the imposing name of the Silurian Age.

Perhaps that is why the snail is so proverbially slow. A creature that has stalked majestically down the eons from the Silurian era, crossing the endless spaces of time that zoologists grandiloquently refer to as Devonian, Carboniferous, Triassic, Jurassic, Cretaceous, Eocene, Miocene, Pliocene, may feel that he belongs to eternity, not to chronology, and may look with contempt upon our excessive regard for such petty things as minutes, hours, days and years.

Family History of Snail Is Venerable Beyond Comprehension.

When I consider how venerable beyond all comprehension is the family history of the snail I cannot take one of his tribe in my hand, see him shrink into his twisted shell and then behold his optical stalks waving about to aim their little lenses upon me without feeling that I have fallen under the astonished gaze of the great Silurian Age itself. And when I see that strange, endless sole on which he crosses and reflect that he has inherited it from ancestors who lived in the very morning of the world, I think again of the illimitable tract of time over which his kind have traveled.

The Gasteropods are a very large family, and the snail as we know him represents only a relatively recent branch of it. But he retains the main characteristics of his most remote ancestors. The family, moreover, has the distinction of living now in the enjoyment of what appears to be the very culmination of its type. The Gasteropods have been increasing in number and variety ever since their first appearance in Silurian, or even pre-Silurian, times. They began as sea animals, although even then they had all the family characteristics, and many of them are sea animals still. Some of them have gotten rid of their shells, or nearly so, and among these are the "slugs," so dreaded by gardeners.

In many countries snails are a favorite article of food. In France many are eaten, and even cultivated for food, or at least encouraged to multiply, under the name of escargots. From this point of view it may be said in their favor that they are vegetable feeders.

The Gasteropods, as I have said, are a large family. Zoologists reckon that they have developed 23,000 species, of which 7,000 are extinct, and 16,000 now flourishing. In some of their forms they have been very useful to man. Some make excellent bait for fish.

In Some Forms They Have Been Very Useful to Mankind

The famous Tyrian purple, the royal color of antiquity, which no modern dye can equal in beauty, was obtained from two species of Gasteropods, marine relatives of the snail, the Murex and the Purpura. The water-inhabiting animals called limpets, car-shells, periwinkles, cowries and many others are members of the family. Their shells are often exceedingly delicate, graceful and beautiful in color. One of the fresh-water snails, called the Limnaeus, often turns itself belly upward and glides with its long sole along the undersides of the water surfaces.

This sole, or endless foot, of the snail is a very curious organ. One can readily believe that nature contrived it when she was making her first experiments in locomotive machinery. The snail advances by contracting the muscles of its foot, which is almost as long as its body.

The eyes on their two long flexible stalks are equally curious. They are furnished with retinal cells to receive the light, with a vitreous substance that resembles a lens and with a cornea, or transparent eye covering, which may be likened to the similar membrane in our eyes. How much they can see we do not know, but they certainly do see, and their eyes are connected by nerves to a brain. So we may infer that snails do some kind of thinking, though it is probably extremely primitive.

Snails Have the Advantage Over Us as Regards Eyesight

They have the advantage over us that they can grow new eyes when the original ones are destroyed. One naturalist says that they can renew their eyes twenty times. Man would probably be satisfied if he could renew his once.

The snail lays its eggs in the ground in the springtime, and during the Winter he buries himself, counts the opening of his bidding place and falls into a long sleep, which, in particular circumstances, has been known to be prolonged for years—during which, perhaps, ancestral dreams come to him of that infinitely remote epoch, ages before the appearance of man, when his predecessors first opened their strange eyes in the waters of the primeval ocean.

An Important Element in Our Citizenship Should Have Representation on the School Board

On next Tuesday the citizens of Boston will choose three members of their City Council and one member of their School Committee.

The contest for the School Committee is between Miss Curtis and Mr. Harris. Miss Curtis is the candidate of the Public School Association. Mr. Harris is the candidate of our Jewish citizens, who believe that the very large representation of Jewish children in the public schools demands the presence of at least one man on the School Board who knows them and their needs, because he is of them.

The AMERICAN believes that these Hebrew citizens are right and that they have found in Mr. Harris a worthy representative.

He began life as a newsboy. He knows every hard step of a Hebrew boy's struggle for an education. He knows all their strong and their weak points. He is a good man, and is especially qualified for the position for which his people and the Democratic City Committee have endorsed him.
